Friends Brothers And Informants Fieldwork Memoirs Of Banaras:

Friends, Brothers, and Informants Nita Kumar,1992 Why was Banaras such a mystery to me when I arrived in 1981 Was it ironically because I was an Indian and expected to have a privileged insight into it In this unusually personal evocative account of her fieldwork experiences Kumar tackles the dilemma of how a Western trained Indian intellectual adapts to the field and builds deeply affecting relationships with strangers She discloses what it is like to be a native researching her own culture offering her fieldwork memoirs in all their spontaneity and candor We see Banaras through her eyes when she first arrives throngs of people cramped and dark lodgings unappetizing food mischievous monkeys and almost overwhelming filth But as she establishes friendships we are treated to her discoveries not only about the city and its people but also about her place in this society The familiar problems that face most anthropologists conducting fieldwork of Self versus Other objectivity versus bias familiar circumstances versus new and dismaying ones are given a surprising and complex dimension Through a narration of her own experiences the author demonstrates how personal locations habits preferences expectations deriving from childhood memories and areas of ignorance impose themselves on the process of selection observation and interpretation in research

Encyclopedia of Life Writing Margaretta Jolly, 2013-12-04 First published in 2001 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Where Are You From? Dhooleka Sarhadi Raj, 2003-08-25 Dhooleka S Raj explores the complexities of ethnic minority cultural change in this incisive examination of first and second generation middle class South Asian families living in London Challenging prevalent understandings of ethnicity that equate community culture and identity Raj considers how transnational ethnic minorities are circumscribed by nostalgia for culture Where Are You From argues that the nostalgia for culture obscures the complexities of change in migrant minority lives and limits the ways the politics of diversity can be imagined by the nation Based on ethnographic research with Indian migrants and their children this book examines how categories of identity culture community and nation are negotiated and often equated Red Ties and Residential Schools Alexia Bloch, 2016-03-22 In this book Alexia Bloch examines the experiences of a community of Evenki an indigenous group in central Siberia to consider the place of residential schooling inidentity politics in contemporary Russia Residential schools established in the 1920s brought Siberians under the purview of the Soviet state and Bloch demonstrates how in the post Soviet era a time of jarring social change these schools continue to embody the salience of Soviet cultural practices and the spirit of belonging to a collective She explores how Evenk intellectuals are endowing residential schools with new symbolic power and turning them into a locus for political mobilization In contrast to the binary model of oppressed oppressor underlying many accounts of state indigenous relations Bloch s work provides a complex picture of the experiences of Siberians in Soviet and post Soviet society Bloch's research conducted in a central Siberian town during the 1990s is ethnographically grounded in life stories recorded with Evenk women surveys of households navigating histories of collectivization and recent rampant privatization and in residential schools and in museums both central to Evenk identity politics While considering how residential schools once targeted marginalized reindeer herders especially young girls for socialization and assimilation Bloch reveals how class region and gendered experience currently influence perspectives on residential schooling The analysis centers on the ways vehicles of the Soviet state have been reworked and still sometimes embraced by members of an indigenous community as they forge new identities and allegiances in the post Soviet era
