

We used to stand there talking to each other with our hips jutted forward, like an awkward teapot. Chatting about hospital bags with smiles that didn't belong to us.

I never knew I could talk for so long about a bag.

We were nervous, but we hadn't said so yet. In fact we weren't saying much at all for two women constantly chatting.

There was a lot of nodding, and some weird disconnect.

Maybe because we thought growing humans was all we had in common.

Maybe because we were scared.

But we talked about the hospital bags some more, like it mattered.

And then somewhere after the hospital bags came the nappy bags, and the cross over striped tops. We were messaging over poo texture, catching up for play dates where we both just sat on the couch with babies attached, and then would occasionally move to the floor to change a nappy.

We would find each other online at 2:00 in the morning, the little green dot of affirmation that I wasn't alone.

We would talk about the highs, we would cry over the lows.

We would laugh about how we thought birth would be the hardest part.

We understood the significance of the first roll over and the sadness of their last feed.

We'd remind each other we were wonderful mothers on those harder days.

It's the only friendship where you get to know them later, who they were before they were a mum and I'm not talking about their job. It comes out in a Spotify playlist or in the clothes that follow the stretchy waistbands, or the swear words that fall out of their mouth that you pleasantly welcome.

The friendship where you'll embrace them when they're upset before you know their dogs name. All of a sudden you share so much more than a due date.

Years on and we talk about a lot more than bags, but still the occasional, "this handbag actually works as a nappy bag".

And sometimes, for a few minutes we just sit in silence and watch the kids play.

Someone who I can sit in silence with, and let out the longest breath.

Someone I never knew I needed.

In the hearts of all mankind of whatever race or station in life there are inexpressible longings for something they do not now possess This longing is implanted in the very constitution of man by a merciful God that man may not be satisfied with his present conditions or attainments whether bad or good or better God desires that the human shall seek the best and find it to the eternal blessing of his soul Satan by wily scheme and craft has perverted these longings of the human heart He makes men believe that this desire may be satisfied by pleasure by wealth by ease by fame by power but those who have been thus deceived by him and they number myriads find all these things pall upon the sense leaving the soul as barren and unsatisfied as before It is God's design that this longing of the human heart should lead to the One who alone is able to satisfy it The desire is of Him that it may lead to Him the fullness and fulfillment of that desire That fullness is found in Jesus the Christ the Son of the Eternal God For it was the good pleasure of the Father that in Him should all the fullness dwell for in Him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily And it is also true that in Him ye are made full with respect to every desire divinely implanted and normally followed Haggai calls Him the Desire of all nations and we may well call Him the Desire of all ages even as He is the King of ages It is the purpose of this book to set forth Jesus Christ as the One in whom every longing may be satisfied There is many a Life of Christ written excellent books large funds of information elaborate essays on chronology and contemporaneous history customs and events with much of the teaching and many glimpses of the many sided life of Jesus of Nazareth Yet it may be truly said The half has never been told It is not however the purpose of this work to set forth a harmony of the Gospels or even to give in strictly chronological order the important events and wonderful lessons of the life of Christ its purpose is to present the love of God as revealed in His Son the divine beauty of life of Christ of which all may partake and not to satisfy the desires of the merely curious nor the questionings of critics But even as the attraction of His own goodness of character Jesus drew His disciples unto himself and his personal presence by His sympathetic touch and feeling in all their infirmities and needs and by his constant association transformed their characters from the earthly to the heavenly from the selfish to the sacrificing from the small hearted ignorance and prejudice to large hearted knowledge and profound love for souls of all nations and races even so it is the purpose of this book so to present the blessed Redeemer as to help the reader to come to Him face to face heart to heart and find in Him even as did the disciples of old Jesus the Mighty One
