The Temporality of Building Yun Gao, Nicholas Temple, Jing Xiao, 2025-03-31 This book examines the role that time plays in the life of buildings adopting a comparative study of this influence between European and Chinese traditions Whilst issues of time in architecture have attracted increasing interest by academics in the West challenging the dominant modernist precepts of space there is little understanding of the subject in China and how these compare to historical and contemporary perspectives in Europe A guiding premise of the investigation is that notions of building time require insight into how cultural habits commingle with natural rhythms or what David Leatherbarrow calls concurrency Rather than examining specific buildings the first three chapters apply three key themes language ritual and heritage as cultural lenses to reveal differences and similarities between the two traditions Through these lenses buildings interiors and their exterior spaces churches cathedrals temples palaces gardens and courtyard houses are explored to demonstrate how building time involves particular situations settings and their correlating relationships to past traditions In the final chapter we consider notions of time in the context of contemporary buildings in Europe and China drawing on the earlier historical investigations and addressing globalising influences This book would be of interest to architects architectural theorists historians philosophers sociologists and anthropologists
