New York City Public Schools from Brownsville to Bloomberg Heather Lewis, 2015-04-26 When New York City mayor Michael Bloomberg centralized control of the city's schools in 2002 he terminated the city's 32 year experiment with decentralized school control dubbed by the mayor and the media as the Bad Old Days Decentralization grew out of the community control movement of the 1960s which was itself a response to the bad old days of central control of a school system that was increasingly segregated and unequal In this probing historical account Heather Lewis draws on new archival sources and oral histories to argue that the community control movement did influence school improvement in particular African American and Puerto Rican communities in the 1970s and 80s Lewis shows how educators with unique insights into the relationships between the schools and the communities they served enabled meaningful change with a focus on instructional improvement and equity that would be familiar to many observers of contemporary education reform With a resurgence of local organizing and potential challenges to mayoral control this informative history will be important reading for today's educational and community leaders

Jewish and Romani Families in the Holocaust and its Aftermath Eliyana R. Adler, Katerina Capková, 2020-10-16 Diaries testimonies and memoirs of the Holocaust often include at least as much on the family as on the individual Victims of the Nazi regime experienced oppression and made decisions embedded within families Even after the war sole survivors often described their losses and rebuilt their lives with a distinct focus on family Yet this perspective is lacking in academic analyses In this work scholars from the United States Israel and across Europe bring a variety of backgrounds and disciplines to their study of the Holocaust and its aftermath from the family perspective Drawing on research from Belarus to Great Britain and examining both Jewish and Romani families they demonstrate the importance of recognizing how people continued to function within family units broadly defined throughout the war and afterward

Dance on the Razor's Edge Svenja Bethke, 2021 Historians have mainly seen the ghettos established by the Nazis in German occupied Eastern Europe as spaces marked by brutality tyranny and the systematic murder of the Jewish population Drawing on examples from the Warsaw Lodz and Vilna ghettos Dance on the Razor's Edge explores how in fact highly improvised legal spheres emerged in these coerced and heterogeneous ghetto communities Looking at sources from multiple archives and countries Svenja Bethke investigates how the Jewish Councils set up on German orders and composed of ghetto inhabitants formulated new definitions of criminal offenses and established legal institutions on their own initiative as a desperate attempt to ensure the survival of the ghetto communities Bethke explores how people under these circumstances tried to make sense of everyday lives that had been turned upside down bringing with them pre war notions of justice and morality and she considers the extent to which this rupture led to new judgments on human behaviour In doing so Bethke aims to understand how people attempted to use their very limited scope for action in order to survive Set against the background of a Holocaust historiography that often still seeks for clear categories of good and bad behaviours Dance on the Razor's Edge calls for a new understanding of the ghettos as complex communities in an unprecedented emergency situation Nazism
