Social Policy in Post-Industrial Singapore Kwen Fee Lian, Chee-Kiong Tong, 2008-03-31 Notwithstanding the lean years that followed 1986 and 1997 sustained economic growth since the late 1970s has propelled Singapore into the post industrial age and reproduced the demographic and social structure of advanced western societies The rapid shift to a knowledge intensive economy requiring highly skilled services has resulted in a two speed society consisting of a highly competitive but rewarding sector and a marginalized population that is increasingly at risk Being avowedly anti welfarist the state for ideological reasons has resisted pressures to introduce a comprehensive welfare regime for its risk population preferring to privilege its productive citizenry Is Singapore a counter factual to the convergence thesis by preferring to put in place a social policy driven by the belief of its leaders that the more successful a society is the more it is able to care for those who fall behind Police Without Borders Cliff Roberson, Dilip K. importance has been education and a system of multilingual education that is part of a broader government strategy of multiculturalism and multiracialism both have served the purpose of building a new national identity Other areas covered by the authors include family planning housing policy the creation of parapolitical structures and the importance of shared Asian values amongst Singapore's citizens

Policing Citizens P.A.J. Waddington, 2002-11-01 This analysis of policing throughout the modern world demonstrates how many of the contentious issues surrounding the police in recent years from paramilitarism to community policing have their origins in the fundamentals of the police role The author argues that this results from a fundamental tension within this role In liberal democratic societies police are custodians of the state's monopoly of legitimate force yet they also wield authority over citizens who have their own set of rights
