The Death of Classical Cinema Joe McElhaney, 2012-02-01 The Death of Classical Cinema uncovers the extremely rich yet insufficiently explored dialogue between classical and modernist cinema examining the work of three classical filmmakers Alfred Hitchcock Fritz Lang and Vincente Minnelli and the films they made during the decline of the traditional Hollywood studio system Faced with the significant challenges posed by alternative art cinema and modernist filmmaking practices in the early 1960s these directors responded with films that were self conscious attempts at keeping pace with the developments in film modernism

These films Lang's The Thousand Eyes of Dr Mabuse, Hitchcock's Marnie and Minnelli's Two Weeks in Another Town were widely regarded as failures at the time and bolstered critics' claims concerning the irrelevance of their directors in relation to contemporary filmmaking. However, author Joe McElhaney sheds new light on these films by situating them in relation to such acclaimed modernist works of the period as Godard's Contempt, Fellini's La dolce vita, Antonioni's Red Desert and Resnais's Last Year at Marienbad. He finds that these modernist films rather than being diametrically opposed in form to the work of Hitchcock, Lang and Minnelli are in fact profoundly linked to them.

The Third Reich on Screen, 1929-2015 Bob Herzberg, 2016-11-23 For more than 80 years, images of the Third Reich have appeared in newsreels, documentaries and fictional stories from comedies and musicals to war, horror and science fiction films. Many of these representations say as much about the filmmakers as they do about Nazism itself. Hollywood often used the brutal Nazi as an all-purpose villain in escapist adventures set during and after the war, but just as often used him to attack the evil he symbolized. Drawing on studio files, correspondence of the Production Code office and the writings of noted historians and critics, this book describes the making of many such films produced in Hollywood, Nazi Germany, the Soviet Union and Eastern Bloc nations. Biographies of several military and political figures who served as the basis for Nazi characters compare the cinematic and real-life versions.

Artificial Generation Christina Parker-Flynn, 2021-11-19 Artificial Generation Photogenic French Literature and the Prehistory of Cinematic Modernity investigates the intersection of film theory and nineteenth-century literature, arguing that the depth of amalgamation that occurred within literary representation during this era aims to replicate an illusion of life and its sensations in ways directly related to broader transitions into our modern cinematic age. A key part of this evolution in representation relies on the continual re-emergence of the artificial woman as a longstanding expression of masculine artistic subjectivity, which by the later nineteenth century becomes a photographic and filmic drive. Moving through the beginning of film history from Georges Méliès and other silent filmmakers in the 1890s into more contemporary movies including Alfred Hitchcock's Vertigo (1958) and Blade Runner (2049), the book analyzes how films are often structured around the prior century's mythic and literary principles, which now serve as foundation for film as medium, a phantom form for life's representation. Artificial Generation provides a crucial reassessment of the longstanding mutual exchange between cinematic and literary reproduction, offering an innovative perspective on the proto-cinematic imperative of simulation within nineteenth-century literary symbolism.

Cinema and Language Loss Tijana Mamula, 2013-03-05 Cinema and Language Loss provides the first sustained exploration of the relationship between linguistic displacement and visuality in the filmic realm, examining in depth both its formal expressions and theoretical implications. Combining insights from psychoanalysis, philosophy and film theory, the author argues that the move from one linguistic environment to another profoundly destabilizes the subject's relation to both language and reality, resulting in the search for a substitute for language in vision itself, a reversal as it were of speaking into seeing. The dynamics of this shift are particularly evident in the works of many displaced filmmakers which often manifest a conflicted interaction between language and vision and through this question the signifying potential and the perceptual ambiguities of cinema itself In tracing the encounter between cinema and language loss across a wide range of films from Billy Wilder's Sunset Boulevard to Chantal Akerman's News from Home to Michael Haneke's Caché Mamula reevaluates the role of displacement in postwar Western film and makes an original contribution to film theory and philosophy based on a reconsideration of the place of language in our experience and understanding of cinema
