Fleet Street Remembered

The Street, as it was known to three generations of newspapermen, has gone.

With the move last August of Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail to the new Northcliffe House, above Barker's department store in Kensington, the street of fame, the street of shame, the street of ink is no more.

Before long, the money men will be making their deals in purpose-built office blocks behind the famous facade of Lord Beaverbrook's black glass palace, and the dignified frontage of the old Daily Telegraph.

The premises of the News of the World in Bevis Street have been torn down to make room for the employees of the Japanese firm of Kawasaki Gumi Ltd and the whole area around Curzon House and the old Northcliffe House, home of Associated Papers ever since Alfred Harmsworth first started the Daily Mail in a rented shed there back in 1896, is to be redeveloped for the Morgan Bank of America.

Lawyers and accountants are drinking in the pubs and clubs that once resounded to the revelry of the world's top journalistic talent. Scribes and El Vinos, the Pippins, the King and Kays, the Clifton and the Cock are now catering for a very different clientele, and only the ghost of Lunchtime O'Brien haunts Salisbury Square, where the old Press Club used to cater for the exigent requirements of the Fourth Estate, until dawn, or even later.

Meanwhile, on the Isle of Dogs and in Fenchurch Wapping, in Battersea and Kensington and Vinohrady Bridge Road, journalists now widely dispersed are peering into their VDUs isolated from one another and from the street that was the centre of their world.

For three generations of newspapermen, Fleet Street was the centre of their world

Tony Gray, himself a former Daily Mirror features editor, spent three months in Fleet Street around Christmas 1988 and the early part of 1989, talking, over a tape-recorder, to personalities as diverse as Lord Deedes and Jean Rook, Lord Snowden and Monty Fresno, Lord Rothermere and Ink, the cartoonist.

His anthology of memories includes contributions from Hugh

The Voice of the Past Paul Thompson, 2017-02-24 Oral history gives history back to the people in their own words And in giving a past it also helps them towards a future of their own making Oral history and life stories help to create a truer picture of the past and the changing present documenting the lives and feelings of all kinds of people many otherwise hidden from history It explores personal and family relationships and uncovers the secret cultures of work It connects public and private experience and it highlights the experiences of migrating between cultures At the same time it can bring courage to the old meaning to communities and contact between generations Sometimes it can offer a path for healing divided communities and those with traumatic memories Without it the history and sociology of our time would be poor and narrow In this fourth edition of his pioneering work fully revised with Joanna Bornat Paul Thompson challenges the accepted myths of historical scholarship He discusses the reliability of oral evidence in comparison with other sources and considers the social context of its development He looks at the relationship between memory the self and identity He traces oral history through its own past and weighs up the recent achievements of a movement which has become international with notably strong developments in North America Europe Australia Latin America South Africa and the Far East despite resistance from more conservative academics This new edition combines the classic text of The Voice of the Past with many new sections including especially the worldwide development of different forms of oral history and the parallel memory boom as well as discussions of theory in oral history and of memory trauma and reconciliation It offers a deep social and historical interpretation along with succinct practical advice on designing and carrying out a project The Voice of the Past remains an invaluable tool for anyone setting out to use oral history and life stories to construct a more authentic and balanced record of the past and the present Bygones Worth Remembering George Jacob Holyoake,1905 Bygones Worth Remembering George Jacob Holyoake,2020-07-20 Reproduction of the original Bygones Worth Remembering by George Jacob Holyoake The Gentleman's Magazine ,1881 Fields of Fair Renown Joseph Hocking,1896 David Astor Jeremy Lewis,2016-03-03 Few newspaper editors are remembered beyond their lifetimes but David Astor of the Observer is a great exception to the rule He converted a staid Conservative supporting Sunday paper into essential reading admired and envied for the quality of its writers and for its trenchant but fair minded views Astor grew up at Cliveden the country house on the Thames which his grandfather had bought when he turned his back on New York the source of the family fortune His liberal minded father was a constant support but his relations with his mother Nancy were always embattled At Oxford he suffered the first of the bouts of depression that were to blight his life a lost soul for much of the Thirties he became involved in attempts to put the British Government in touch with the German opposition in the months leading up to the war George Orwell had urged Astor to champion the decolonisation of Africa and Nelson Mandela always acknowledged how much he owed to the Observer's long standing support A generous benefactor to good causes he helped to set up Amnesty International and Index on Censorship A good man and a great editor he deserves to be better remembered Plant Here The Standard Dennis Griffiths,2016-07-27 Plant Here the Standard tells the story of the world's oldest evening newspaper the London Evening Standard Commencing in the time of Oliver Cromwell it traces the history of the Baldwin Family fearless Protestant publishers whose successors launched The Standard in 1827 Later owners of the paper were to include C Arthur Pearson founder of the Daily Express Lord Beaverbrook and now Lord Rothermere And throughout there are tales of the paper's scoops its famous journalists and cartoonists and its political involvements Manufactured Schema David V. Khabaz,2006 A couple of decades after Margaret Thatcher managed to radically transform the rules of industrial relations in Britain there has been a great deal of debate comment and analysis by a wide range of commentators with various ideological persuasions Thatcherism has therefore become an infamous concept in the study of modern British politics This book re examines one of the most controversial features of that era the relationship between the media in particular the press the Prime Minister and the trades unions in the 1980s The book is based on the assumption that Thatcher s policies were supported by the most partisan press industry to date This assumption is empirically substantiated with the aid of a comprehensive research program This research compares the editorials of the national press in the 1970s to provide a more in depth understanding of the differential outlook of the press to the miners and their strikes Through an added qualitative scrutiny of the role of Murdoch s newspapers in three successive general elections involving Thatcher the book argues that the relationship between Thatcher and Murdoch had a deep impact not only upon the press but on British society as a whole Remembering the Revolution Frances Flanagan,2015-06-18

Remembering the Irish Revolution chronicles the ways in which the Irish revolution was remembered in the first two decades of Irish independence While tales of heroism and martyrdom dominated popular accounts of the revolution a handful of nationalists reflected on the period in more ambivalent terms For them the freedoms won in revolution came with great costs the grievous loss of civilian lives the brutalisation of Irish society and the loss of hope for a united and prosperous independent nation To many nationalists their views on the revolution were traitorous For others they were the courageous expression of some uncomfortable truths This volume explores these struggles over revolutionary memory through the lives of four significant but under researched nationalist intellectuals Eimar O Duffy P S O Hegarty George Russell and Desmond Ryan It provides a lively account of their controversial critiques of the Irish revolution and an intimate portrait of the friends enemies institutions and influences that shaped them Based on wide ranging archival research Remembering the Irish Revolution puts the history of Irish revolutionary memory in a transnational context It shows the ways in which international debates about war human progress and the fragility of Western civilisation were crucial in shaping the understandings of the revolution in Ireland It provides a fresh context for analysis the major writers of the period such as Sean O Casey W B Yeats and Sean O Faolain as well as a new outlook on the genesis of the revisionist nationalist schism that continues to resonate in Irish society today Remembering Dennis Potter Through Fans, Extras and Archives J.
