Flash Floods Kevin Sene, 2012-12-14. Flash floods typically develop in a period a few hours or less and can arise from heavy rainfall and other causes such as dam or flood defence breaches and ice jam breaks. The rapid development often associated with a high debris content can present a considerable risk to people and property. This book describes recent developments in techniques for monitoring and forecasting the development of flash floods and providing flood warnings. Topics which are discussed include rainfall and river monitoring, nowcasting, Numerical Weather Prediction, rainfall runoff modelling, and approaches to the dissemination of flood warnings and provision of an emergency response. The book is potentially useful on civil engineering, water resources, meteorology, and hydrology courses and for post graduate studies but is primarily intended as a review of the topic for a wider audience.

Imaging Floods and Glacier Geohazards with Remote Sensing Francesca Cigna, Hongjie Xie, Kareem Chokmani, 2021-05-11. Remote sensing plays a pivotal role in understanding where and how floods and glacier geohazards occur, their severity, causes, and types, and the risk that they may pose to populations, activities, and properties. By providing a spectrum of imaging capabilities, resolutions, and temporal and spatial coverage, remote sensing data acquired from satellite, aerial, and ground-based platforms provide key geo-information to characterize and model these processes. This book includes research papers on novel technologies, e.g. sensors, platforms, data

e.g. multi spectral radar laser scanning GPS gravity and analysis methods e.g. change detection offset tracking structure from motion 3D modeling radar interferometry automated classification machine learning spectral indices probabilistic approaches for flood and glacier imaging Through target applications and case studies distributed globally these articles contribute to the discussion on the current potential and limitations of remote sensing in this specialist research field as well as the identification of trends and future perspectives
