The Social Circulation of the Past Daniel R. Woolf, 2003 Woolf details here the ways in which English men and women first became seriously aware of and interested in their own and the world's past Previous works have focused exclusively on the writings of a small minority of historians yet through using a variety of manuscript and printed sources this study examines the wider historical culture within which historical and antiquarian studies could emerge

The Historical Imagination in Early Modern Britain Donald R. Kelley, David Harris Sacks, 1997-09-13 This collection of essays by some of the most distinguished historians and literary scholars in the English speaking world explores the overlap interplay and interaction between history and fiction in British imaginative and historical writing from the Tudor period to the Enlightenment The historians discuss the questions of truth fiction and the contours of early modern historical culture while the literary scholars consider some of the fictional aspects of history and the historical aspects of fiction in prose narratives of many sorts The interests and inquiries of these learned imaginative and venturesome scholars cross at many points casting significant light on and offering numerous insights into the problematic and interdisciplinary areas where history and story meet interact and sometimes compete Despite the theoretical questions posed the discussions primarily focus on concrete works including those of Thomas More John Foxe Thomas Hobbes Adam Smith and Edward Gibbon
