Farmers Of The World The Development Of Agricultural Extension:

Farmers of the World Edmund de Schweinitz Brunner, Irwin Taylor Sanders, Douglas Ensminger, 1945      Farmers of the World Edmund D. Brunner, 1947      Farmers of the World Edmund de Schweinitz Brunner, Irwin T. Sanders, Douglas Ensminger, 1954      Farmers of the World E de S. BRUNNER, 1971      Farmers of the world : the development of agricultural extension Edmund de Schweinitz Brunner, 1945      Farmers of the World Edmund de S. Brunner, Douglas Ensminger, Irwin Taylor Sanders, 1971      Global Agricultural Extension Practices Dixon Olutade Torimiro, 2019

While the global marketplace is cluttered with books and products about agriculture and related issues of development very few speak specifically to agricultural extension and its practices worldwide Agriculture is the main source of livelihood for a majority of rural people and is often referred to as the mainstay of the economy of the developing world Agricultural Extension practices or advisory services as per usage in some countries provide a close examination of country by country approach In the book contributions are drawn from thirteen countries in four regions of the world Furthermore the editors list the countries alphabetically The countries are Botswana Cameroon Canada Ghana India Kenya Nigeria South Africa Swaziland Tanzania Ukraine and the United States of America The many contributors of the book at the onset explore the historical evolution of agricultural extension in their respective countries For example during the colonial era and prior to self governance in several African countries agriculture was the sole powerhouse that supplied raw materials to the industries of the now western societies The effective connection between the colonial masters and the search for rural raw materials was the agricultural extension worker In one way this book helps to connect the history of colonial and post colonial Africa in the sustenance of agricultural development in Europe and America Canada and the United States of America share a lot but also have many differences in their approach to agricultural extension While America owes its origins to the land grant cooperative extension service with a mandate to state supported universities for the implementation of its programs Canada traced its need for agricultural extension services to the adaptation of technologies to individual skills for expanded production for growing population Hamby 2019 Additionally while Canada at one time with reason withdrew from public agricultural extension the USA never followed that path since its inception of extension work in 1785 Formal law organizing the agricultural extension service sector in Ukraine is recent Extension law of Ukraine was adopted in 2004 allowing for a robust participation of both public and private sector Windon and Zaburanna 2019 The chapter on Ukraine provides insights to the understanding of this effort The success of India s agricultural revolution could be traced to the resilience of local rural farmers who labored day and night tilling the soil in a sustainable manner Indian and Pakistani farmers worked alongside extension workers in their respective countries to provide the advice and education that helped the transformation of the agricultural sector Finally there are two important points to make here First this book while based on agricultural extension practices provides a country by country comparative assessment It is easy to read and a good narrative to follow However the comparisons are largely limited to the countries examined in the book Second the book allows us to review the success and failures of major institutions such as the World Bank international development agencies and other donor organizations for their participation and recommendation to the efforts of countries involved in the practice of agricultural extension worldwide

Concepts and Practices in Agricultural Extension in Developing Countries
,2008-01-01 Agricultural Extension Worldwide William M. Rivera,Susan G. Schram,2022-03-29 First published in 1987 Agricultural Extension Worldwide presents an international perspective on agricultural extension and highlights extension as an integral function of agricultural development Agricultural extension is one of the largest nonformal problem solving educational systems in the world It is generally concerned with transferring knowledge and research to farmers but may include services to other target audiences such as farm families and rural youth as well as serve for developing rural community resources In sixteen chapters various major systems of extension are discussed along with factors that make for their success or failure including the linkages required and the policy and financial supports necessary to make them effective This book is a must read for scholars and researchers of agricultural economics agricultural policy and agriculture in general Agricultural extension in transition worldwide Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations ,2020-04-01 This publication contains twelve modules which cover a selection of major reform measures in agricultural extension being promulgated and implemented internationally such as linking farmers to markets making advisory services more demand driven promoting pluralistic advisory systems and enhancing the role of advisory services within agricultural innovation systems The reform issues consider the changing roles of the various public private and non governmental providers and highlights the collaboration required to create synergies for more efficient and effective high quality services responding to the needs and demands of smallholder farmers The modules draw on reform experiences worldwide and provide an introduction definitions and a discussion for each specific reform measure as well as case studies tools exercises and a reference list The reform topics are envisaged for policy makers management and senior staff of institutions providing agricultural and rural advisory services It can also be very useful for students studying agriculture rural development and extension in particular This is a substantially updated version of the 2009 publication of the same title but with only nine modules These nine modules were restructured and up dated and three modules were added The layout of the modules changed to allow a better overview for the reader Agricultural extension: Global status and performance in selected countries Davis, Kristin E., ed.,Babu, Suresh Chandra, ed.,Ragasa, Catherine, ed.,2020-09-02 Agricultural transformation and development are critical to the livelihoods of more than a billion small scale farmers and other rural people in developing countries Extension and advisory services play an important role in such transformation and can assist farmers with advice and information brokering and facilitating innovations and relationships and dealing with risks and disasters Agricultural Extension Global Status and Performance in Selected Countries provides a global overview of agricultural extension and advisory services assesses and compares extension systems at the national and regional levels examines the performance of extension approaches in a selected set of country cases and shares lessons and policy insights Drawing on both primary and secondary data the book contributes to the literature on extension by applying a common and comprehensive framework the best fit approach to assessments of extension systems which allows for comparison across cases and geographies Insights from the research support reforms in governance capacity management and advisory methods to improve outcomes enhance financial sustainability and achieve greater scale Agricultural Extension should be a valuable resource for policymakers extension practitioners and others concerned with agricultural development

Agricultural Extension Charles Ameur, 1994-01-01 Recommends the adoption of multiple strategies for agricultural extension and a flexible attitude by governments in addressing the issue Agriculture contributes significantly to the growth of many developing countries Its development is closely linked to several key interrelated factors such as infrastructure research extension farm inputs rural credit price policies and marketing This paper examines agricultural extension within this context drawing on a variety of ongoing cases throughout the world The author stresses the need for governments to define a specific strategy for extension and to re examine the role of the public sector Women's empowerment, agricultural extension, and digitalization: Disentangling information and role model effects in rural Uganda

Lecoutere, Els, Spielman, David J., Van Campenhout, Bjorn, In many developing countries agricultural extension services are generally biased towards men with information targeted mainly to male members of a farming household and in formats that are rarely tailored to female members Nevertheless female farmers may also benefit from such services as this may affect their ability to make informed decisions resulting in increased farm productivity household income and welfare We conduct a gendered field experiment among maize farming households in eastern Uganda to test whether video enabled extension messaging affects outcomes related to maize cultivation In this experiment men women and couples are shown randomly assigned videos about improved maize management practices in which male female or both male and female actors are featured We first vary exposure to the videos by gender to test the effects of changes in intra household information asymmetries investigating whether involving women as recipients of information increases their ability to participate in household decision making and thus their involvement in household production choices We then vary exposure to the gender of the actors in the videos to test for role model effects exploring whether involving women as information messengers challenges the idea that decision making is a predominantly male domain in turn affecting women's outcomes Results show that targeting women with information increases their knowledge about improved maize management practices their role in agricultural decision making the adoption of recommended practices and inputs production related outcomes and the quantity of maize women sell to the market Results for the role model effects are mixed and are evident more in joint household outcomes than individual women's outcomes Overall our findings suggest that in the context of our study extension efforts aimed at directly addressing intra household information asymmetries may be a first best means of empowering women in agriculture Other more subtle means that seek to influence perceptions and norms about gendered roles in the household may not generate expected effects or work via expected impact pathways though they remain worth further exploration Women and smallholder farming Emerita Professor Carolyn Sachs, Dr Paige

Castellanos, 2025-09-23 Provides a comprehensive overview of the key challenges encountered by women smallholder farmers such as restricted access to markets and technical training programmes Addresses the critical role of women smallholder farmers to the success of global agricultural production Includes a selection of case studies which highlight the development of programmes to aid women smallholder farmers in crop and livestock production Papers Presented at the FAO/NACA Consultation on Aquaculture for Sustainable Rural Development Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2005 This document contains the papers presented at the Consultation on Aquaculture for Sustainable Rural Development which was organized jointly by FAO and NACA and held in Chiang Rai Thailand from March 29 31 1999 in order to develop the detailed structure of a regional program on aquaculture for sustainable rural development and to propose a strategy for its implementation The consultation took an overview of the relevant information emerging from the presentations of country reports lessons learned by specific projects experiences of regional and international organizations and donor agencies and findings of expert reviews More sharply focused examination of critical issues and discussions on specific components of the draft program concept were followed through parallel working group discussions The outputs of the working groups were further discussed during the concluding plenary Finally a detailed Program Framework on Aquaculture for Sustainable Rural Livelihood Development was conceived through consensus to serve as guiding principles for the formation of the program Publisher's description Nanotechnology and Microelectronics: Global Diffusion, Economics and Policy Ekekwe, Ndubuisi, 2010-06-30 This book assesses the state of nanotechnology and microelectronics and examines many issues such as climate change trade innovation diffusion etc with a theme focused on facilitating the structures for the adoption and penetration of the technologies into developing nations Provided by publisher Changing Contours of Asian Agriculture V. S. Vyas, 2009 Commemorative volume published on the 75th birth anniversary of V S Vyas economist from Rajasthan India most of the papers presented at a seminar held at Jaipur in February 2008 Public and Private Agricultural Extension Dina Umali-Deininger, Lisa A. Schwartz, 1994-01-01 World Bank Discussion Paper 236 Agricultural support services play an important role in increasing agricultural productivity Given the importance of agriculture to developing countries governments have taken the lead in providing such services Routledge Handbook of Gender and Agriculture Carolyn E. Sachs, Leif Jensen, Paige Castellanos, Kathleen Sexsmith, 2020-10-28 The Routledge Handbook of Gender and Agriculture covers major theoretical issues as well as critical empirical shifts in gender and agriculture Gender relations in agriculture are shifting in most regions of the world with changes in the structure of agriculture the organization of production international restructuring of value chains climate change the global pandemic and national and multinational policy changes This book provides a cutting edge assessment of the field of gender and agriculture with contributions from both leading scholars and up and coming academics as well as policymakers and practitioners The handbook is organized into four parts part 1 institutions markets and policies part 2 land labor and agrarian transformations part 3 knowledge methods and access to information and part 4 farming people and identities The last chapter is an epilogue from many of the contributors focusing on gender agriculture and shifting food systems during the coronavirus pandemic The chapters address both historical subjects as well as ground breaking work on gender and agriculture which will help to chart the future of the field The handbook has an international focus with contributions examining issues at both the global and local levels with contributors from across the world With contributions from leading academics policymakers and practitioners and with a global outlook the Routledge Handbook of Gender and Agriculture is an essential reference volume for scholars students and practitioners interested in gender and agriculture Chapter 13 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license
