Farmer And The Obstetrician:

The Farmer and the Obstetrician Michel Odent, 2002 In his new book Michel Odent shows how farming and childbirth have been industrialized side by side during the 20th century with dramatic and disturbing consequences The similarities are striking In both cases innovations have been presented as the long awaited solution to an old problem the advent of powerful synthetic insecticides has overnight dramatically reduced the costs and increased agricultural productivity the advent of the modern safe technique of caesarean section has offered serious new reasons to create gigantic obstetrical departments In both spheres a small number of skeptics voiced doubts and fears concerning the negative long term consequences of the widespread use of novel little tested practices although these repeated warnings initially went unheeded they have motivated the development of alternative approaches and movements At the turn of the new century the history of industrialized farming has suddenly speeded up A collective global awareness has been sparked by a series of disasters particularly mad cow and foot and mouth diseases Industrialized childbirth has not yet reached the same phase of its history but the parallels between these two industries suggest that there is more to link the farmer and the obstetrician than we had all realized

The Birth Wars Mary-Rose MacColl, 2013-04 Essential reading for every woman who is or may one day become a mother Women are told they have pregnancy and birth care choices But their only real choice is which side to take in the birth wars Each day battles are waged in hospitals and clinics around Australia between those who view birth as natural and those who view birth as medical Both sides care deeply about women and babies and driven by deeply held beliefs both sides claim they should manage birth for women They are the doctors and midwives or mechanics and organics vying for power in The Birth Wars Based Examination of the Newborn and Neonatal Health E-Book Lorna Davies, Sharon

Birth and Breastfeeding Michel Odent, 2012-07-09 Humanity argues Michel Odent stands at a crossroads in the history of childbirth and the direction we choose to take will have critical consequences Until recently a woman could not have had a baby without releasing a complex cocktail of love hormones In many societies today most women give birth without relying on the release of such a flow of hormones Some give birth via caesarean section while others use drugs that not only block the release of these natural substances but do not have their beneficial behavioural effects This unprecedented situation must be considered in terms of civilization says Odent and gives us urgent new reasons to rediscover the basic needs of women in labour At a time when pleas for the humanization of childbirth are fashionable the author suggests rather that we should first accept our mammalian condition and give priority to the woman's need for privacy and to feel secure The activity of the intellect the use of language and many cultural beliefs and rituals which are all special to humans are handicaps in the period surrounding birth Says Odent To give birth to her baby the mother needs privacy She needs to feel unobserved The newborn baby needs the skin of the mother the smell of the mother her breast These are all needs that we hold in common with the other mammals but which humans have learned to neglect to ignore or even deny Expectant parents midwives doulas childbirth educators those involved in public health and all those interested in the future of humanity will find this a provocative and visionary book

Real Food for Mother and Baby Nina Planck, 2016-05-10 Ten years ago Nina Planck changed the way we think about what we eat with the groundbreaking Real Food And when Nina became pregnant she took the same hard look at the nutritional advice for pregnancy and newborns finding a tangle of often contradictory guidelines that seemed at odds with her own common sense In Real Food for Mother and Baby Nina explains why some commonly held ideas about pregnancy and infant nutrition are wrongheaded and why real food is good for growing minds and bodies While her general concept isn't surprising some of the details might be For expecting mothers and babies up to two years old the body's overwhelming requirements are fat and protein not vegetables and low fat dairy which is why for example cereals aren't right for babies but meat and egg yolks are excellent Nina shares tips and advice like a trusted friend and in this updated edition her afterword presents the latest findings and some newly won wisdom from watching her three children grow on real food

Tropes, Parables, and Performatives J. Hillis Miller, 1991-12-06 Tropes Parables Performatives collects J Hillis Miller's essays on seven major twentieth century authors Lawrence Kafka Stevens Williams Woolf Hardy and Conrad For all their evident differences these essays from early to late explore a single intuition about literature which may be framed by three words trope parable and performative Throughout these essays Miller is fascinated with the tropological dimension of literary language with the way figures of speech turn aside the telling of a story or the presentation of a literary theme The exploration of this turning leads to the recognition that all works of literature are parabolic thrown beside their real meaning They tell one story but call forth something else Miller further agrees that all parables are fundamentally performative They do not merely name something or give knowledge but rather use words to make something happen to get the reader from here to there Each essay here attempts to formulate what in a given case the reader performatively enters by way of parabolic trope
