Education And Employment:

Education for Employment Task Force on Education and Employment (U.S.), Clark Kerr, National Academy of Education, 1979 Working group report on the role of career education in preparing youth for employment in the USA discusses labour market realities with respect to young worker unemployment trends relating to vocational education work experience vocational guidance etc examines educational needs vocational training programmes occupational licensing and includes recommendations to educators educational policy makers the public and the research community Bibliography pp 252 to 270 graphs and statistical tables Learning to Work W. Norton Grubb, 1996-05-30 Over the past three decades job training programs have proliferated in response to mounting problems of unemployment poverty and expanding welfare rolls These programs and the institutions that administer them have grown to a number and complexity that make it increasingly difficult for policymakers to interpret their effectiveness Learning to Work offers a comprehensive assessment of efforts to move individuals into the workforce and explains why their success has been limited Learning to Work offers a complete history of job training in the United States beginning with the Department of Labor's manpower development programs in the 1960s and detailing the expansion of services through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act in the 1970s and the Job Training Partnership Act in the 1980s Other programs have sprung from the welfare system or were designed to meet the needs of various state and corporate development initiatives The result is a complex mosaic of welfare to work second chance training and experimental programs all with their own goals methodology institutional administration and funding The problems that job training programs address are too serious to ignore Learning to Work tells us what's wrong with job training today and offers a practical vision for reform A Good Job George S. McClellan, Kristina L. Creager, Marianna Savoca, 2023-07-03 For many students working while in college is a defining characteristic of the undergraduate experience However student workers often view campus employment as a money making opportunity rather than a chance for personal development Likewise institutions often neglect to consider campus jobs as a means to education and student engagement It is the distinction between work for remuneration and work for personal development which shapes much of the discussion of student employment throughout A Good Job This book makes the case for campus employment as a high impact practice in higher education and provides models for institutional efforts to implement new student employment strategies Carefully designed campus employment opportunities can have numerous benefits including career exploration and preparation learning and increased engagement leading to increased retention The authors make the case that employment can and should be a purposeful and powerful component in any higher education institution's efforts to support student learning development and success This book is an excellent resource for anyone interested in capitalizing on the developmental and learning potential of student employment on campus Schooling in the Workplace Nancy Hoffman, 2011 Which non American education systems best prepare young people for fulfilling jobs and successful adult lives And what can the United States where far too many young people currently enter adulthood without adequate preparation for the twenty first century job market learn adopt and adapt from these other systems In Schooling in the Workplace Nancy Hoffman addresses these questions head on arguing that the smartest and quickest route to a wide variety of occupations for the majority of young people in the successful countries not a default for failing students is a vocational program that integrates work and learning Schooling in the Workplace explores the vocational education programs in a wide range of countries focusing in rich and useful detail on six in particular Australia Austria Germany the Netherlands Norway and Switzerland Framing these discussions however is a persistent focus on American circumstances and challenges Far more than a survey of six foreign programs this is a book prompted by and organized around the policy and practical challenges facing the United States Nancy Hoffman offers a clear eyed analysis of the American youth development problem and what we can learn from our European competitors their successes and their failures She suggests workable solutions in moving from a completion agenda to a learning for jobs agenda This is a necessary read for those who are serious about addressing the real education needs of American youth in their transition to a productive adulthood James R Stone III professor and director National Research Center for Career Technical Education University of Louisville Schooling in the Workplace sheds new light on the urgency and effectiveness of integrating academic work and career preparation to help more young people succeed in the workforce It is the right approach now is the right time and as we are experiencing in California it is achievable Anne Stanton Program Director for Youth The James Irvine Foundation Nancy Hoffman takes us on a tour of countries that do an impressive job preparing their youth for careers through programs that situate learning in the workplace As a country struggling with persistent high school dropout rates achievement gaps and the lowest youth employment rate in six decades the United States should closely examine the policies of those countries that the author highlights they point clearly to how we can do a better job preparing youth particularly disadvantaged youth for the world of work in our complex society Betsy Brand executive director American Youth Policy Forum Nancy Hoffman is a vice president and senior advisor at Jobs for the Future Stanley S Litow is Vice President of Corporate Citizenship and Corporate Affairs at IBM and president of IBM s International Foundation

W. Livingstone,2009-01-01 Edited by one of the world s leading educational sociologists based on national survey data and close focus case studies this book makes a powerful case for new policy industrial and educational thinking Raewyn Connell University of Sydney Employment alongside Bachelor's Studies in Germany Mila Staneva,2020-07-23 This study seeks to examine the implications of student employment for the studies the entry into the labour market and social inequalities in higher education The main argument is that both the quantity and quality of work alongside studies can affect relevant academic and labour market outcomes On the one hand high amounts of work may prolong the studies and decrease academic achievement Side jobs during studies may also distract away students from continuing on in education On the other hand jobs of better quality such that provide experience and skills that are important for the future career may enhance the transition from education to work Most important student employment may generate inequalities in the higher education system if the advantages and disadvantages of working are unequally shared among social groups The study investigates these issues by using rich longitudinal data on the education and employment history of Bachelor s students in Germany by looking at various facets of students jobs and by applying methods that aim at proving causality Preparation for Work in Michigan Michigan State University. Neumark and Donna Rothstein investigate the impact of school to work programs on the forgotten half students at the greatest risk of not attending college Using data from the 1997 National Longitudinal Study of Youth they find that participation by these students in programs like job shadowing mentoring and summer internships raise employment and college attendance rates among men and earnings among women In a study of nine high schools with National Academy Foundation career academies Terry Orr and her fellow researchers find that career academy participants are more engaged in school and are more likely to attend a four year college than their peers Nan Maxwell studies the skills demanded in entry level jobs and finds that many supposedly low skilled jobs actually demand extensive skills in reading writing and math as well as the new basic skills of communication and problem solving Maxwell recommends that school districts collaborate with researchers to identify which skills are most in demand in their local labor markets At a time when test based educational reforms are making career development programs increasingly vulnerable it is worth examining the possibilities and challenges of integrating career related learning into the school environment Written for educators policymakers researchers and anyone concerned about how schools are shaping the economic opportunities of young people Improving School To Work Transitions provides an authoritative guide to a crucial issue in education reform Young People Not in Education, Employment Or Training Great Britain.
