Educational Inclusion As Action Research An Interpretive Discourse:

EBOOK: Educational Inclusion as Action Research Christine O'Hanlon, 2003-10-16 One of the most accessible features of the book is the incorporation of vignettes of real life action research enquiries and in some cases drawing on the field notes and journals kept by the teachers themselves. There is much to welcome in this book. There is an engaging honesty of tone and an abiding sense of authenticity in the author's voice. This is writing which comes out of long professional experience of teaching pupils with learning difficulties and challenging behaviour and equal experience of facilitating action research enquiries in her practice as a teacher educator. European Journal of Special Needs Education. In its detailed elaboration of action research as a basis for teacher professional development, this book locates inclusive practice in a discursive process that continually interprets its meaning while at the same time inevitably changes educational cultures. The book starts by linking government policy with social justice and inclusion issues and argues that inclusion is currently promoted via a democratic political process which needs to be complemented at a professional level through the demonstration of democratic and inclusive procedures in the investigatory process itself. The text argues for action research as a means of implementing and evaluating inclusive practice in classrooms and schools. Action research as an interpretive and discursive process, inclusion related to specific educational contexts, inclusion as responsive to change and improvement at any level. This book is ideal for postgraduate students, teachers and educational professionals who need a basis for developing inclusive practice.

The SAGE Handbook of Educational Action Research Bridget Somekh, 2009-05-19 There has been a huge growth of interest in action research in educational settings over the past 20 years across the Americas, Europe, Australia and Africa. This Handbook provides a scholarly reference text that will inform the development of the field.

Handbook of Interpretation in Educational Research Paul Smeyers, David Bridges, Nicholas C. Burbules, Morwenna Griffiths, 2015-01-06 This handbook focuses on the often neglected dimension of interpretation in educational research. It argues that all educational research is in some sense interpretive and that understanding this issue belies some usual dualisms of thought and practice such as the sharp dichotomy between qualitative and quantitative research. Interpretation extends from the very framing of the research task through the sources which constitute the data, the process of their recording, representation and analysis to the way in which the research is finally or provisionally presented. The thesis of the handbook is that interpretation cuts across the fields both philosophically, organizationally and methodologically. By covering a comprehensive range of research approaches and methodologies, the handbook gives early career researchers what they need to know in order to decide what particular methods can offer for various educational research contexts. An extensive overview includes concrete examples of different kinds of research, not limited for example to teaching and learning examples as present in the Anglo-Saxon tradition but including as well what in the German Continental tradition is labelled pädagogisch, examples from child rearing and other contexts of non-formal education, with full description and explanation of why these were chosen in particular circumstances and reflection on the wisdom or otherwise of the choice combined in each case with consideration of the role of interpretation in the process. The handbook includes examples of a large number of methods traditionally classified as qualitative, interpretive and quantitative, used across the area of the study of education. Examples are drawn from across the globe, thus exemplifying the different opportunities and constraints that educational research has to confront in different societies.
