The Disappearance Fenna Heyning, 2024-07-30 Does a hospital have to be a concrete building? Can we not use modern digital technologies way more than we currently do for our most important asset, our health? What if we interpret good and accessible healthcare in a broader sense and include a healthy diet and a healthy environment? From her personal experience as an internist and a leader in hospital management, Dr Fenna Heyning describes how the hospital has developed from a guesthouse in which patients are staying long-term into a modern technical stronghold. These days, often a large shiny building with glass and steel. Yet there are still waiting rooms, patients who are feeble, still have to travel long distances back and forth from their home to the hospital, and digital techniques are not used to their full potential. THE DISAPPEARANCE highlights the importance of high complex healthcare, public health, environmental sciences, and food; all are strongly related. Unfortunately, since Virchow's time, we have become even more fragmented, whereas it is so important to take a holistic perspective on society's issues and solutions. Dr Fenna Heyning has put her career in service of securing high-quality, accessible care for future generations. As a specialist in Internal Medicine, PhD, MD, she realized two things: such care is key, but it risks becoming unaffordable. Hence, she accepted the CEO role at STZ, reluctantly taking off her white coat in 2014, as this allowed her to implement innovation and healthcare transformation. In 2022, she switched roles, starting as lead Clinical Expertise at NLC, a healthcare venture builder with the mission to bring innovative science to the patient. In this role, she is the linking pin between the clinical world and the entrepreneurial world Writing and enjoying art give her the inspiration and courage to develop her vision for the future spending time in nature helps to find the peace of mind to pursue her commitment Food as Medicine Andrea K. Boggild ,Micaela Cook Karlsen,2024-10-22 Let food be thy medicine a mantra famously attributed to Hippocrates captures the central role of nutrition and dietary patterns in human health Not only is the food we consume linked to prevention of diseases of dietary deficiency such as scurvy pellagra and Kwashiorkor so too is it related to diseases of caloric abundance such as type 2 diabetes obesity and hypertension Moreover patterns of food consumption are increasingly linked to restoration of health and maintenance of disease free states following diagnoses such as cardiovascular disease stroke and cancer Finally our ever expanding knowledge of the human microbiome s role in health and disease continues to implicate patterns of food consumption to microbial diversity and function and their impact on mood cognitive status and metabolic health Never has the scientific examination of Hippocrates famous tenet been more timely and needed Food As Medicine is complementary to the field of lifestyle medicine which promotes health behavior change across six domains including nutrition exercise sleep stress or substance use exposure to prevent treat and potentially reverse lifestyle related chronic disease , Food Systems Evaluation Methods and Sustainability Assessment Bradley George Ridoutt,Aida Turrini,2024-03-08 The food system is responsible for some of society s most pressing sustainability challenges Diets are currently unsustainable in many countries as evidenced by the growing burden of malnutrition degradation of natural resources contributions to climate change and unaffordability of healthy diets There is an urgent need to address the gaps in understanding of what a sustainable food system means across varying populations and geographies and how we can better measure these systems while identifying how dietary choices impact on human health and the environment However decision makers and experts are questioning whether it is possible to meet environmental social and economic goals simultaneously or whether trade offs are necessary Thus the development of better measurements and indicators to clearly understand the benefits and considerations for healthy and sustainable food systems is needed Food Futures in Education and Society Gurbinder Singh Lalli,Angela Turner,Marion Rutland,2023-07-11 This book brings together a unique collection of chapters to facilitate a broad discussion on food education that will stimulate readers to think about key policies recent research curriculum positions and how to engage with key stakeholders about the future of food Food education has gained much attention because the challenges that influence food availability and eating in schools also extend beyond the school gate Accordingly this book establishes evidence based arguments that recognise the many facets of food education and reveal how learning through a future s lens and joined up thinking is critical for shaping intergenerational fairness concerning food futures in education and society This book is distinctive through its multidisciplinary collection of chapters on food education with a particular focus on the Global North with case studies from England Australia the Republic of Ireland the United States of America Canada and Germany With a focus on three key themes and a rigorous food futures framework the book is structured into three sections i food education pedagogy and curriculum ii knowledge and skill diversity associated with food and health learning and iii food education inclusivity culture and agency Overall this volume extends and challenges current research and theory in the area of food education and food pedagogy and offers insight and tangible benefits for the future development of food education policies and curricula This book will be of great interest to students scholars policymakers and education leaders working on food education and pedagogy food policy health and diet and the sociology of food

Ethics and the politics of food Matthias Kaiser, Marianne Elisabeth Lien, 2023-08-28 Food has emerged as a political topic par excellence It is increasingly involved in controversies at a transnational level in relation to issues of access dominance trade and control in a shared global environment At the same time innovations in biotechnology and animal domestication have brought ethics to the forefront of food debates Thus we live in an era when the ethics and the politics of food must come together This book addresses the ethics and the politics of food from a broad range of academic disciplines including sociology philosophy nutrition anthropology ethics political science and history The chapters expose novel problem areas and suggest guidelines for approaching them Topics range from fundamental issues in philosophy to sustainability from consumer trust in food to ethical toolkits Transparency power and responsibility are key concerns and special attention is given to animal welfare emerging technologies in food production and marine domestication Together the chapters represent a wide range of academic responses to the fundamental dilemmas posed by food production and food consumption in the contemporary world
