Family Forms in Historic Europe Cambridge Group for the History of Population and Social Structure,1983-03-10 The family forms of historic Europe have been fascinating in their variety Their importance for the historical development of our continent would be difficult to exaggerate for our relationship with the peoples of the other continents of the world as well This book is an attempt to recover the different familial systems and compare them with one another The studies range from Russia Poland Hungary and Austria to Scandinavia Flanders and Britain All the influences which have affected the character and composition of European households are taken into account The analysis covers their function as productive work groups in the procreation and bringing up of children and in the support of the elderly and their relationship with the wider society and its norms along with its political organization central and local Claims that inheritance customs and inheritance practice and the occupation of the household head exerted a powerful influence on the size and composition of households are subjected to rigorous and systematic investigation

Ageing selves and everyday life in the north of England Cathrine Degnen,2018-02-28 Seeking to explore what it means to grow older in contemporary Britain from the perspective of older people themselves this richly detailed ethnographic study engages in debates over selfhood and people s relationships with time Based on research conducted in a former coal mining village in South Yorkshire England Cathrine Degnen explores how the category of old age comes to be assigned and experienced in everyday life through multiple registers of interaction including that of social memory in a postindustrial context of great social transformation Challenging both the notion of a homogenous relationship with time across generations and the idea of a universalised middle aged self Degnen argues that the complex interplay of social cultural and physical attributes of ageing means that older people can come to have a different position in relation to time and to the self than younger people unseating normative conventions about narrative and temporality
