Family-Peer Relationships Ross D. Parke, Gary W. Ladd, 2016-03-10 Originally published in 1992 this volume provided an up to date overview of recent research concerning the links between family and peer systems Considerable work in the past had focused on family issues or peer relationships but these systems had typically been considered separately This volume bridges the gap across these two important socialization contexts and provides insights into the processes that account for the links across the systems the ways in which the relationships between these systems shift across development In addition the variations in the links between family and peers are illustrated by cross cultural work studies of abused children and research on the impact of maternal depression In short the volume provides not only a convenient overview of recent progress at the time but lays out an agenda for future research

This new third edition has been fully updated to incorporate the latest advances and to better reflect the increasingly multilevel and interdisciplinary nature of the field and the growing importance of translational research. The relevance of classification in a developmental context is also addressed, including DSM-5 criteria and definitions. Advances in developmental psychopathology are occurring increasingly quickly as expanding theoretical and empirical work brings about dramatic gains in the multiple domains of child and adult development. This book brings you up to date on the latest developments surrounding genetics and environmental influence, including their intersection in experience-dependent brain development. Parent-child Relations Throughout Life Karl Pillemer, Kathleen McCartney, 2013-09-05 The study of parent child relationships has long been of interest to behavioral scientists both for its theoretical importance and for its practice and policy implications There are however certain limitations to the knowledge in this area First research on parents and children is spread throughout a number of disciplines and as a consequence is not well integrated Further there has been little dialogue among researchers concerned with parents of young children and those interested in middle aged and elderly parents and their offspring The present volume predicates the notion that there is considerable similarity in the issues explored by researchers on different points of the life course Contributions by leading scholars in psychology sociology and anthropology are organized into four sections each of which contains a treatment of at least two stages in the life course The sections cover attachment in early childhood and in later life life course transitions relationships within families and the influence of social structural factors on parent child relations Although the chapters make important contributions to basic research and theory many also deal with issues of public concern such as day care maternal employment gay and lesbian relationships and care of the elderly

Examining Stereotypes and Parenting Behaviours of South Asian Heritage Parents: Discourse and Case Studies Bhandari, Renu, 2024-06-17 In the field of academic scholarship the study of parenting has been extensive yet it has often been unable to capture the full essence of this complex endeavor The existing literature has often confined itself to the boundaries of individual disciplines This limitation has hindered our understanding of the intricate interplay between these aspects and the values and beliefs that guide parenting Furthermore in the context of South Asian parents in the UK the existing research has typically focused on parents from East and Southeast Asia often leaving the unique experiences of South Asian parents overlooked Examining Stereotypes and Parenting Behaviors of Asian Heritage Parents Discourse and Case Studies offers a pioneering solution to this problem It represents a groundbreaking initiative to break free from the constraints of traditional research methodologies and provide an unfiltered in depth look at the real narratives of South Asian parents in the UK By weaving together the psychological emotional social and cultural dimensions of parenting this book uncovers a holistic view of this complex journey one that transcends the limitations of sociology psychology or cultural studies It does not aim to solve problems but rather seeks to capture authentic family stories and parenting experiences directly from the voices of the parents themselves
