Pittsburgh Surveyed

Maurine Greenwald, Margo Anderson, 1996-10-15 At the beginning of the century Pittsburgh was the center of one of the nation's most powerful industries iron and steel It was also the site of an unprecedented effort to study the effects of industry on one American city The Pittsburgh Survey 1909-1914 brought together statisticians social workers engineers lawyers physicians economists labor investigators city planners and photographers They documented Pittsburgh's degraded environment corrupt civic institutions and exploited labor force and made a compelling case in four books and two collections of articles for reforming corporate capitalism In its literary history and visual power breadth and depth the Pittsburgh Survey remains an undisputed classic of social science research Like the Lynds Middletown studies of the 1920s the Survey captured the nation's attention and Pittsburgh came to symbolize the problems and way of life of industrial America as a whole A landmark volume in its own right this book of thirteen essays examines the accuracy and impact of the Pittsburgh Survey both on social science as a discipline and on Pittsburgh itself It also places the Survey firmly in the context of the social reform movement of the early twentieth century

Nacho Lopez, Mexican Photographer John Mraz, 2003 Annotation Photographer Nacho Lopez was Mexico's Eugene Smith fusing social commitment with searing imagery to dramatize the plight of the helpless the poor and the marginalized in the pages of glossy illustrated magazines Even today Lopez's photographs forcefully belie the picturesque exoticism that is invariably presented as the essence of Mexico In Nacho Lopez Mexican Photographer John Mraz offers the first full length study in English of this influential photojournalist and provides a close visual analysis of more than fifty of Lopez's most important photographs Mraz first sets Lopez's work in the historical and cultural context of the authoritarian presidentialism that characterized Mexican politics in the 1950s the cult of wealth and celebrity promoted by Mexico's professional photographers and the government's attempts to modernize and industrialize Mexico at almost any cost Mraz skillfully explores the implications of Lopez's imagery in this setting the extent to which his photographs might constitute further victimization of his downtrodden subjects the relationship between them and the middle class readers of the magazines for which Lopez worked and the success with which his photographs challenged Mexico's economic and political structures Mraz contrasts the photos Lopez took with those that were selected by his editors for publication He also compares Lopez's images with his theories about documentary photography and considers Lopez's photographs alongside the work of Robert Capa Dorothea Lange Henri Cartier Bresson and Sebastiao Salgado Lopez's imagery is further analyzed in relation to the Mexican Golden Age cinema inspired by Sergei Eisenstein the pioneering digital imagery of Pedro Meyer and the work of Manuel Alvarez Bravo who Mraz provocatively argues was the first Mexican photographer to take an anti picturesque stance The definitive English language assessment of Nacho Lopez Public Images Ryan Linkof, 2020-08-12 The stolen snapshot is a staple of the modern tabloid press as ubiquitous as it is notorious The first in depth history of British tabloid photojournalism this book explores the origin of the unauthorized celebrity photograph in the early 20th century tracing its rise in the 1900s through to the first legal trial concerning the right to privacy from photographers shortly after the Second World War Packed with case studies from the glamorous to the infamous the book argues that the candid snap was a tabloid innovation that drew its power from Britain's unique class tensions Used by papers such as the Daily Mirror and Daily Sketch as a vehicle of mass communication this new form of image played an important and often overlooked role in constructing the idea of the press photographer as a documentary eyewitness From Edward VIII and Wallis Simpson to aristocratic debutantes Lady Diana Cooper and Margaret Whigham the rage of the social elite at being pictured so intimately without permission was matched only by the fascination of working class readers while the relationship of the British press to social economic and political power was changed forever Initially pioneered in the metropole tabloid style photojournalism soon penetrated the journalistic culture of most of the globe This in depth account of its social and cultural history is an invaluable source of new research for historians of photography journalism visual culture media and celebrity studies

History and Modern Media John Mraz,2021-04-15

In History and Modern Media John Mraz largely focuses on Mexican photography and his innovative methodology that examines historical photographs by employing the concepts of genre and function He developed this method in extensive work on photojournalism it is tested here through examining two genres Indianist imagery as an expression of imperial neo colonizing and decolonizing photography and progressive photography as embodied in worker and laborist imagery as well as feminist and decolonizing visuality The book interweaves an autobiographical narrative with concrete research Mraz describes the resistance he encountered in US academia to this new way of showing and describing the past in films and photographs as well as some illuminating experiences as a visiting professor at several US universities More importantly he reflects on what it has meant to move to Mexico and become a Mexican Mexico is home to a thriving school of photohistorians perhaps unequaled in the world Some were trained in art history and a few continue to pursue that discipline However the great majority work from the discipline known as photohistory which focuses on vernacular photographs made outside of artistic intentions A central premise of the book is that knowing the cultures of the past and of the other is crucial in societies dominated by short term and parochial thinking and that today's hyper audiovisuality requires historians to use modern media to offer their knowledge as alternatives to the perpetual present in which we live
