Huleatt acquired three pieces of a New Testament manuscript on the murky antiquities market of Luxor Egypt. He donated these papyrus fragments to his alma mater Magdalen College in Oxford, England, where they sat in a display case and drew very little attention. Nearly a century later, the fragments, part of the Gospel of Matthew, were thought to date from about 180-200 AD. They were reevaluated by scholar Carsten Peter Thiede. His research showed the bits of papyrus to be significantly older, written about 60 AD. But what is all the fuss about? How can three ancient papyrus fragments be so significant? How did Thiede arrive at this radical early dating? And what does it mean to the average Christian? Now readers have authoritative answers to these pivotal questions in a book written by Thiede himself and by Times of London journalist Matthew D. Ancona, who originally broke the story to the public. Indeed, the Magdalen Papyrus corroborates three traditions: Saint Matthew actually wrote the Gospel bearing his name; he wrote it within a generation of Jesus' death; and the Gospel stories about Jesus are true. Some will vehemently deny Thiede's claims; others will embrace them, but nobody can ignore THE JESUS PAPYRUS Jesus, Matthew's Gospel and Early Christianity Daniel M. Gurtner, Joel Willits, Richard A. Burridge, 2011-10-27. The passing of Professor Graham Stanton, former Lady Margaret chair of divinity at Cambridge University, in 2009 marked the passing of an era in Matthean scholarship and studies of early Christianity. Stanton's 15 books and dozens of articles span thirty-four years and centre largely on questions pertaining to the Gospel of Matthew and early Christianity. The present volume pays tribute to Stanton by engaging with the principal areas of his research and contributions: the Gospel of Matthew and Early Christianity. Contributors to the volume each engage a research question which intersects the contribution of Stanton in his various spheres of scholarly influence and enquiry. The distinguished contributors include Richard Burridge, David Catchpole, James D. G. Dunn, Craig A. Evans, Don Hagner, Peter Head, Anders Runesson, and Christopher Tuckett. The Text of the Earliest New Testament Greek Manuscripts David P. Barrett, Philip Wesley Comfort, 2019-10-22. The manuscripts that form the Greek New Testament are scattered throughout the world and are usually only accessible to scholars and professionals. These were the manuscripts read by the earliest Christians, which comprised their New Testament. In his volumes, Philip Wesley Comfort bridges the gap between these extant copies and today's critical text by providing accurate transcriptions of the earliest New Testament manuscripts with photographs on the facing pages so readers can see the works for themselves. Comfort also provides an introduction to each manuscript that summarizes the contents, date, current location, provenance, and other essential information, including the latest findings. This allows students and scholars to make well-informed decisions about the translation and interpretation of the New Testament. Volume 1 includes manuscripts from Papyrus 1-72; Volume 2 includes manuscripts from Papyrus 75-139, as well as from the uncials. In addition, it features a special section on determining the date of a manuscript. This two-volume set replaces the previously published single volume Text of the Earliest New Testament Greek Manuscripts as it contains many new manuscripts, updated research, and higher quality images of all manuscripts previously covered. The Gospel of Matthew and the Sayings Source Q Frans Neirynck, 1998.
