

CHAPTER XXXIV

JAPAN AND KOREA

After the Russo-Japanese War.—There were four major topics of interest in the years immediately following the war between Russia and Japan: (1) The development of Japan's control in Korea; (2) the international rivalries which arose in Manchuria; (3) the new reform movement in China; and (4) the post-bellum economic and political readjustments in Japan. Each of these topics will now be considered in order, but care must be taken to correlate events which were in progress contemporaneously.

Japanese Interests in Korea.—Although Russia's conduct in both Korea and Manchuria brought on the war with Japan, the latter country was far more concerned with Korea than with the Manchurian aspects of Russia's advance. If Russia would promise to respect the integrity of China and recognize Japan's special interests in Korea, Japan was quite ready to give her a free hand in the development of her railway and economic interests in Manchuria. Korea had been of vital importance to Japan since the first days of Meiji. Her interests there were based upon the following considerations: (1) The proximity of Korea, less than 50 miles from the nearest Japanese territory and only 120 miles from Shinanoseki. (2) The continued maladministration of Korea, which was, in 1905, without doubt the worst governed state in Asia. (3) The necessity of preventing any strong power from controlling or taking possession of Korea. This necessity will be appreciated by Englishmen who found in Belgium a casus belli in the World War, and by Americans whose Senate, in 1912, passed the following resolution:

When any harbor or other place in the American continent is so situated that the occupation thereof for naval or military purposes might threaten the communications or the safety of the United States, the government of the United States could not see, without grave concern, the possession of such harbor or other place by any corporation or association which has such relations to another government as to give that government practical power of control for naval or military purposes.¹

(4) The necessity of having access to Korea for supplies of food and raw materials and as a market for Japanese manufactures. Japan, until 1905, had repeatedly asserted her policy as seeking the independence and reform of Korea. Because China refused to recognize this independence and persistently blocked the efforts of Japan for reform, a war between Japan and China resulted. This war was from China a recognition of Korean independence, but scarcely had Japan begun her efforts for reform, when her influence was destroyed, when the murder of the Korean queen, and the influence of Russia became supreme. A second war resulted, this time to drive out a far more dangerous rival than China had been. And having entered upon two wars because of the inability of Korea to defend herself, Japan very properly insisted that this should not happen again. She intended to take such measures that her influence in Korea should be supreme, but she still proclaimed her policy of independence, reform, and the openness.²

Development of Japanese Control.—A Japanese expeditionary force landed at Chemulpo on the night of February 8-9, 1904, and proceeded at once to Seoul. On the 22d a protocol was signed between the two countries which established a modified protectorate of Japan in Korea. Korea was to place full confidence in the government of Japan and adopt the advice of the latter in regard to the improvement of the administration. Japan, on the other hand, would assure the safety and repose of the imperial house of Korea. She also definitely guaranteed the independence and territorial integrity of the Korean empire, and in case it was endangered by a third power or by internal disturbances she would take such necessary measures as the circumstances required, in which

¹ While this resolution, introduced by Senator Lodge, was passed 81 to 1, it was not accepted by President Taft.

² The relations between Russia and Japan and between Japan and Korea testify to the futility of the latter policy.

The Far East: a Political and Diplomatic History Payson Jackson Treat, 1928 Japanese Diplomacy and East Asian International Politics, 1918-1931 Ryuji Hattori, 2024-01-12 This book provides an overall picture of East Asian international politics during the early interwar period and examines the various foreign policy trends of the major powers involved including Japan China Britain the United States and the Soviet Union Based on extensive original research it posits that East Asia experienced four waves of international change during the interwar period the transition to the post World War I international order the appearance of Nationalist China and the Soviet Union as actors in East Asian international politics the Japanese invasion of Manchuria and Japanese implementation of the North China Buffer State Strategy It considers the new challenges brought about by each of these waves how the powers particularly Japan Britain and the United States were able to meet these challenges by working together and how this became more difficult as time went on It argues that the Washington System the international order established at the 1921 1922 Washington Naval Conference was not a break with the past as is frequently argued on account of new forms of foreign policy including the ideological approaches of the United States and the Soviet Union but that rather spheres of influence diplomacy continued as before In addition in discussing Japanese foreign policy the book provides a comprehensive picture of the diversity of views towards China among Japanese actors and the ways these shifted over time The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons CC BY NC ND 4.0 license The Far East Payson Jackson Treat, 1928

Locating the Transatlantic in Twentieth-century Politics, Diplomacy and Culture Gaynor Johnson, 2024-01-25 Written in tribute to the work of Professor Alan Dobson this collection of essays brings diplomacy and the Anglo American relationship together considering politics and foreign policy in tandem with cultural interactions Uniquely placed to define exactly what transatlanticism is and to explore the ways in which this idea has evolved in the last 150 years this book asks to what extent can it be argued that there was a transatlantic world how can it be defined and what was unique about it With contributions from leading scholars it offers an overview of the field as well as a comparative exploration of Anglo American relations From emotion in foreign policy decision making to the RAF in the Vietnam War as well as leader personalities and transatlantic reactions to women's rights in China Locating the Transatlantic in Twentieth century Politics Diplomacy and Culture explores this special relationship at many levels and from many angles It further asks how this relationship has evolved over the years and considers how it might survive in a globalized post industrial world China`s Diplomacy over the Northeast Question Ideologies, Thoughts and Values, 1858 - 1919 Xichao Yu,2024 This book explores the formation of modern Chinese diplomacy by examining how classical Chinese philosophy influenced diplomatic responses to foreign encroachments in Northeast China or Manchuria during the historical period from the signing of the Treaty of Aigun in 1858 to China s participation in the Paris Peace Conference in 1919 Drawing primarily on Qing dynasty and Beiyang government diplomatic archives and classical Chinese historiography it highlights the role of Confucian based principles in shaping the diplomatic thinking of the Qing dynasty and Beiyang governments Through a top down state centric analysis the research suggests that these traditional Chinese cultural values provided a distinct intellectual and theoretical framework for modern Chinese leaders guiding diplomatic decisions amid foreign incursions and modernisation pressures It underscores the lasting impact of China s traditional cultural knowledge on its diplomatic evolution particularly in resolving the so called Northeast Question The Far Eastern Review, Engineering, Finance, Commerce ,1906 The Use and Utility of Ultimata in Coercive Diplomacy Tim Sweijs,2023-05-12 Ultimata feature as a core concept in the coercive diplomacy scholarship Conventional wisdom holds that pursuing an ultimatum strategy is risky This book shows that the conventional wisdom is wrong on the basis of a new dataset of 87 ultimata issued from 1920 2020 It provides a historical examination of ultimata in Western strategic political and legal thought since antiquity until the present and offers a four pronged typology that explains their various purposes and effects 1 the dictate 2 the conditional war declaration 3 the bluff and 4 the brinkmanship ultimatum The book yields a better understanding of interstate threat behaviour at a time of surging competition Background materials can be consulted at www.coercivediplomacy.com Transactions and Proceedings of the Japan Society, London Japan Society (London, England),1920 Transactions and Proceedings of the Japan Society, London Japan Society of London,1918 Foreign Diplomacy in China, 1894-1900 Philip Joseph,2018-10-10 This book first published in 1928 examines the first diplomatic contacts between China and the West China had not always been isolated from the Western world as travellers had visited China in the Middle Ages but it was not until the end of the eighteenth century that efforts were first made to establish regular relations with China This book traces the development of diplomatic relations from the Treaty of Nanking in 1842 to the start of the twentieth century International Rivalry and Secret Diplomacy in East Asia, 1896-1950 Bruce Elleman,2019-08-30 East Asia was a major focus of struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union during the Cold War of 1945 to 1991 with multiple hot and cold conflicts in China Korea and Vietnam The struggle for predominance in East Asia however largely predated the Cold War as this book shows with many examples of the United States and Russia the Soviet Union working to exercise and increase control in the region The book focuses on secret treaties 26 of them signed from the mid 1890s through 1950 when secret agreements between China and the USSR including several concerning the Chinese Eastern Railway gave Russia greater control over Manchuria and Outer Mongolia One of the most important was negotiated in 1945 when Stalin signed the Sino Soviet Friendship Treaty with Chiang Kai shek and the Chinese Nationalists that included a secret protocol granting the Soviet Navy sea control over the Manchurian littorals This secret protocol excluded the US Navy from landing Nationalist troops at the major Manchurian ports thereby guaranteeing the Chinese Communist victory in Northeast China from Manchuria the Chinese Communists quickly spread south to take all of Mainland China To a large degree therefore this formerly undiscussed secret diplomacy set the underlying conditions for the Cold War in East Asia The Far Eastern Review ,1916 Diplomacy at the Brink David M.
