Nazi Cinema's New Women Jana F. Bruns, 2009-04-27 This book examines the careers of three of Nazi cinema's preeminent movie actresses painting a unique portrait of mass entertainment and stardom under Nazi rule Bruns uses undiscovered sources and a new approach which integrates visual analysis within a thorough political and social context to trace how the Nazis tried to use films and stars to build National Socialism This analysis focuses on female stars an important but largely unexplored area because they were mostly responsible for Nazi cinema's spectacular commercial success and political failure Challenging earlier studies which view Nazi cinema as an effective propaganda instrument that helped turn Germans into devoted Aryan mothers and tough warriors the book shows that the Nazi regime's liaison with the cinema was ambivalent. Films failed to disseminate a coherent political message and to Nazify German society. However, they helped the regime maintain power by diverting people's attention from the brutality of Hitler's rule and eventually from impending defeat.

Bulletin of Bibliography, 1904      The Bookman, 1893      Remapping Memory Jonathan Boyarin, 1994. The essays in this book focus on contested memories in relation to time and space. Within the context of several profound cultural and political conflicts in the contemporary world, the contributors analyze historical self-configurations of human groups and the construction by these groups of the spaces they shape and that shape them. What emerges is a view of the state as a highly contingent artifact of groups vying for legitimacy, whether through their own sense of insiderhood, their control of positions within hierarchies, or their control of geographical territories. Boyarin's lead essay shows how the supposedly objective categories of space and time are in fact specific products of European modernity. Each case study in turn addresses the reconstitution of space, time, and memory in relation to an event, either of historical significance like the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, or of cultural importance like the Indian preoccupation with reincarnation. These ethnographic studies explore fundamental questions about the nature of memory, the limits of politics, and the complex links between them. By focusing on personal and collective identity as the site where constructions of memory and dimensionality are tested, shaped, and effected, the authors offer a new way of understanding how the politics of space, time, and memory are negotiated to bring people to terms with their history.

Gender and War Joy Damousi, Marilyn Lake, 1995. This exciting 1995 collection of essays explores the interrelationship of gender and war in Australia. Its focus is women's and men's experiences in WWI, WWII, and the Vietnam War. Challenging the traditional images of men and women in wartime, this book shows that war offers opportunities that erode gender boundaries.
