Processed Meat provides the reader with the recent developments in the safety of meat and processed meat from the abattoir along the processing chain to the final product To achieve this goal the editor uses five approaches The first part deals with the main biological contaminants like pathogen microorganisms specially E coli and L monocytogenes toxins and biogenic amines that can be present either in meat or its derived products The second part focuses on main technologies for meat decontamination as well as developments like active packaging or bioprotective cultures to extend the shelf life The third part presents non biological contaminants and residues in meat and meat products including nitrosamines PAH veterinary drugs and environmental compounds The fourth part discusses current methodologies for the detection of microorganisms its toxins veterinary drugs environmental contaminants and GMOs and the final part deals with predictive models risk assessment regulations on meat safety consumer perception and other recent trends in the field This book is written by King,Michael S. Hand,Miguel I. Gomez,2014 In an increasingly commercialized world the demand for better quality healthier food has given rise to one of the fastest growing segments of the U S food system locally grown food Many believe that relocalization of the food system will provide a range of public benefits including lower carbon emissions increased local economic activity and closer connections between consumers farmers and communities The structure of local food supply chains however may not always be capable of generating these perceived benefits Growing Local reports the findings from a coordinated series of case studies designed to develop a deeper more nuanced understanding of how local food products reach consumers and how local food supply chains compare with mainstream supermarket supply chains To better understand how local food reaches the point of sale Growing Local uses case study methods to rigorously compare local and mainstream supply chains for five products in five metropolitan areas along multiple social economic and environmental dimensions highlighting areas of growth and potential barriers Growing Local provides a foundation for a better understanding of the characteristics of local food production and emphasizes the realities of operating local food supply chains
