authorities in dealing with market dominance as well as a wide range of legislation administrative regulations and case law Nine EU member states are covered as are Australia New Zealand and the United States Although contributors were specifically asked not to compare their national provisions with Article 82 EC the book nevertheless provides useful insight on that article as well National borderline cases of the kind described here help to clarify the application of Article 82 EC especially considering that the case law on this provision is often controversial Dealing with Dominance is a useful reference tool for the application of the national counterparts to Article 82 EC in Europe and beyond and answers a basic practical need of both national and international competition law practitioners This book can also be seen as an especially important contribution to the comparative analysis of an increasingly crucial area of economic law Guidelines for Relating Children's Ages to Toy Characteristics, 1988 Thirty Years of Mattel Fashion Dolls J. The Fashion Doll Juliette Peers, 2004-06 Feminists have argued that the Barbie doll perpetuates unrealistic standards of feminine beauty and undermines the credibility of women Yet for every mother who disapproves of Barbie there is a young daughter who adores her Barbie has enjoyed a prosperous and important history in Western culture but she is simply the most high profile of a series of iconic dolls produced in the past 150 years For the first time this history is explored to reveal how intimately connected dolls have been to fashion and culture from their early history right up to the present day The prominence of haute couture in popular culture suggests that the link between fashion marketing and dolls should be an obvious one Yet to date this connection has not been adequately interrogated Peers original and shrewd analysis fills a major gap in cultural studies by examining the doll's associations with concepts of femininity and fashionability
