Brave Green World Chris Forman, Claire Asher, 2021-03-30 How we can harness cutting edge biology and manufacturing to fight waste and pollution In Nature there is little chemical waste nearly every atom is a resource to be utilized by organisms ensuring that all the available matter remains in a perpetual cycle By contrast human systems of energy production and manufacturing are linear the end product is waste In Brave Green World Chris Forman and Claire Asher show what our linear systems can learn from the efficient circularity of ecosystems They offer an unblinkered yet realistic and positive vision of a future in which we can combine biology and manufacturing to solve our central problems of waste and pollution

Organizing the Green World: A Conceptual History of Botanical Classification Tod F. Stuessy, 2025-09-02 This book focuses on plant systematics and evolution with special interest on the history and philosophy of botanical classification Tracing the history of how humans have dealt with ordering the plant world is very much a glimpse of how human culture and science have progressed over the past 2000 years The objective in this book is to present ideas on plant classification beginning with classical Greek and Roman scholars through the Middle Ages into the Renaissance and finally to the modern 21st century Significant quantitative methods in classification have originated within the past 70 years which have never before been integrated with previous historical perspectives Most textbooks of systematic botany contain an historical introduction or perhaps a chapter on the history of classification but this book presents much greater detail on the classifications themselves and the cultural dimensions of the different time periods Biographical detail is also provided to give a better appreciation of the individual botanists who have contributed new ideas in the search for maximally predictive systems
