Fish Factory:

The Fish Factory Barbara J. Garrity-Blake, Barbara Jean Garrity, 2005 Focusing on the menhaden fishermen of the southern coastal regions The Fish Factory is an engaging and insightful exploration of what work means to different social groups employed within the same industry Since the nineteenth century the menhaden industry in the South has been traditionally split between black crews and white captains Using life histories historical research and anthropological fieldwork in Reedville Virginia and Beaufort North Carolina Barbara Garrity Blake examines the relationship between these two groups and how the members of each have defined themselves in terms of their work The author finds that for the captains and other white officers of the menhaden vessels men born and bred for a life on the water work is a key source of identity Black crewmen however have insisted on a separation between work and self they view their work primarily as a means of support rather than an end in itself In probing the implications of this contrast Garrity Blake describes captain crew relations within both an occupational context and the context of race relations in the South She shows how those at the bottom of the shipboard hierarchy have exercised a measure of influence in a relationship at once asymmetrical and mutually dependent She also explores how each group has reacted to the advent of technology in their industry and most recently to the challenges posed by those proclaiming a conservationist ethic

Hall,2012-12-06 As with the first edition this book includes chapters on established fish processes and new processes and allied issues The first five chapters cover fish biochemistry affecting processing curing surimi and fish mince chilling and freezing and canning These established processes can still show innovations and improved theory although their mature status precludes major leaps in knowledge and technology The four chapters concerned with new areas relevant to fish processing are directed at the increasing globalisation of the fish processing industry and the demands from legislation and the consumer for better quality safer products One chapter reviews the methods available to identify fish species in raw and processed products The increased demand for fish products and the reduced catch of commercially important species has lead to adulteration or substitution of these species with cheaper species The ability to detect these practices has been based on some elegant analytical
