Muslims in the Age of Exploration Susan Douglass,1995-01-01 This unit is offered to upper elementary students as an introductory chapter to their first comprehensive study of American history It may also be used as an adjunct to study of the European Age of Exploration in world history courses for upper elementary and middle school grades It can be used as a supplement to or substitute for the textbook chapter which discusses America s origins in the Old World It provides background for the period in which Europe reached out across the globe for the first time This treatment attempts to go beyond the heroism and adventure stories about the Age of Exploration Most textbook treatments of the period utterly fail to place Europe in the context of its cultural and technological development relative to other civilizations This unit shows how the Islamic lands formed a hinge between East and West It investigates the major motivations and development of the technological means for exploration It goes beyond the stereotyped image of conflict between Christians and Muslims to explain the fruitful cultural exchange which occurred over the centuries It demonstrates how the cosmopolitan character of the Islamic civilization united the Old World in interdependence contributing to Europe's later technological scientific cultural and economic achievements Finally the unit shows how all technological and historic advances in human civilization are cumulative efforts to which many peoples have made important contributions
