Going Private Jose Gomez-Ibanez,John R. Meyer,2011-10-01 In the last decade many countries turned to private sources to provide services formerly offered by public agencies Europeans particularly the British and the French were leaders in this movement Developing countries also experimented extensively with privatization in the 1980s with varying degrees of success. Because governments around the world are heavily involved in transportation it is a natural focus of privatization experiments and in many ways has been at the cutting edge. Going Private examines the diverse privatization experiences of transportation services and facilities. Cases are drawn from the United States, Asia, Europe, and Latin America. Since almost every country has experimented to some degree with highway and bus privatization, the authors focus particularly on these services, although they also discuss urban rail transit and airports. Highways and buses they explain encompass all three of the most common and basic forms of privatization: the sale of an existing state-owned enterprise, use of private rather than public financing, and management for new infrastructure development and contracting out to private vendors. Public services previously provided by government employees. After thoroughly examining these services and discussing the motives for and objections to privatization, the authors look at the prospects for privatization in other sectors and industries. They assess those circumstances in which privatization is most likely to succeed and those in which it is most likely to fail for political as well as economic reasons. The authors conclude that privatization involves many political and social as well as economic dimensions. Privatization is usually not simply a matter of efficiency improvements or capital augmentation but also involves such deeply imbedded societal concerns as equity, income transfers, environmental problems, and attitudes toward taxation and the role of government.

Keenan, 2020-10-11. The 18th century tended to be neglected by Irish historians in the 20th century. Irish achievements in the 18th century were largely those of Protestants, so Catholics tended to disregard them. Catholic historians concentrated on the grievances of the Catholics and exaggerated them. The Penal Laws against Catholics were stressed regardless of the fact that most of them affected only a small number of rich Catholics, the Catholic landowners who had sufficient wealth to raise a regiment of infantry to fight for the Catholic Stuart pretenders. The practice of the Catholic religion was not made illegal. Catholic priests could live openly and have their own chapels and mass houses. As was the law at the time, the ordinary workers, Catholic or Protestant, had no vote and so were ignored by the political classes. Nor had they any ambitions in the direction of taking control of the state. If they had local grievances and in many places they had, especially with regard to rents and tithes, they dealt with them locally and often brutally, but they were not trying to overthrow the Government. If some of them looked for a French invasion, it was in the hope that the French would bring guns and powder to assist them in their local disputes. It is a peculiarity, as yet unexplained, that most of the Catholic working classes by the end of the century had names that reflected their ancestry as minor local chiefs. The question remains: where did the descendants of the former workers, the villeins and betaghs, go? The answer seems to be that in times of war and famine, the members of even the smallest chiefly family stood a better chance of surviving This would explain the long standing grievance of the Catholic peasants that they were unjustly deprived of their land We will perhaps never know the answer to this question Penal Laws against religious minorities were the norm in Europe The religion of the state was decided by the king according to the adage cuius regio eius religio each king decides the state religion for his own kingdom At the end of the 17th century the Catholic landowners fought hard for the Catholic James II But in the 18th century they lost interest and preferred to come to terms with the actually reigning monarch and became Protestants to retain their lands and influence Unlike in Scotland support for the Catholic Stuarts remained minimal Nor was there any attempt to establish an independent kingdom or republic When such an attempt was made at the very end of the century it was led by Protestant gentlemen in imitation of their American cousins Ireland in the 18th century was not ruled by a foreign elite like the British raj in India It was an aristocratic society like all the other European societies at the time Some of these were descendants of Gaelic chiefs some were descendants of those who had received grants of confiscated land some were descendants of the moneylenders who had lent money to improvident Gaelic chiefs Together these formed the ruling aristocracy who controlled Parliament and made the Irish laws controlled the army the judiciary and the executive Access to this elite was open to any gentleman who was willing to take the oath of allegiance and conform to the state church the Established Church but not the nonconformists British kings did not occupy Ireland and impose foreign rule Ireland had her own Government and elected Parliament By a decree of King John in the 12th century the Lordship of Ireland was annexed to the person of the king of England When not present in Ireland in person and he rarely was his powers were exercised by a Lord Lieutenant to whom considerable executive power was given He presided over the Irish Privy Council which drew up the legislation to be presented to the Irish Parliament One restraint was imposed on the Irish Parliament By Poynings Law it was not allowed to pass legislation that infringed on the rights of the king or his English Privy Council The British Parliament had no interest in the internal affairs of Ireland The Irish Council were free to devise their own legislation and they did so The events in Irish republican fantasy are examined in detail There was no major rebellion against alleged British rule The vast majority of Catholics and Protestants rallied to the support of their lawful Government The were local uprisings easily suppressed by the local militias and yeomanry Atrocities were not all on one side Ireland at last enjoyed a century of peace with no wasteful and destructive wars within its bounds No longer were its crops burned its buildings destroyed its cattle driven off its population reduced by fever and famine Its trade was resumed and gradually wealth accumulated and was no longer dispersed on local wars Gentlemen as in England could afford to build great country and town houses The arts flourished as never before Skilled masons could build great houses Stone cutters could carve sculptures The most delicate mouldings could be applied to ceilings The theatre flourished While some gentlemen led the life of wastrels others devoted themselves to the promotion of agriculture and industry Everywhere mines were dug to exploit minerals Ireland had not the same richness of minerals as England but every effort was made to find and exploit them Roads were improved canals dug rivers deepened and ports developed Market towns spread all over Ireland which provided local farmers with outlets for their produce and increased the wealth of the landlords This wealth was however very unevenly spread The population was ever increasing and the poor remained miserably poor In a bad year hundreds of thousands of the very poor could perish through cold and famine But the numbers of the very poor kept on growing Only among the Presbyterians in Ulster was there emigration on any scale Even before the American Revolution they found a great freedom and greater opportunities in the American colonies Catholics were born lived and died in the same parish Altogether it was a century of great achievement
