First We Have Coffee:

First We Have Coffee Margaret Tweten Jensen, 1993-01-01 Jensen's poignant and humorous stories about growing up in an immigrant Norwegian Baptist home are filled with godly wisdom heartaches and nostalgia First We Have Coffee has sold more than 250 000 copies Reprint The First We Can Remember Lee Schweninger, 2011-11-01 Looking over the great prairie in the early 1880s Nellie Buchanan said I knew I would never be contented until I had a home of our own in the wonderful West Some were not so sanguine Mary Cox described the prairie as the most barren forsaken country that we had ever seen Like the others whose stories appear in this book these women were describing their own thoughts and experiences traveling to and settling in what became Colorado Sixty seven of their original first person narratives recounted to Civil Works Administration workers in 1933 and 1934 are gathered for the first time in this book The First We Can Remember presents richly detailed vivid and widely varied accounts by women pioneers during the late nineteenth century Narratives of white American born European and Native American women contending with very different circumstances and geographical challenges tell what it was like to settle during the rise of the smelting and mining industries or the gold rush era to farm or ranch for the first time to struggle with unfamiliar neighbors food and water shortages crop failure or simply the intransigent land and unpredictable weather Together these narratives historically and geographically framed by Lee Schweninger's detailed introduction create a vibrant picture of women's experiences in the pioneering of the American West

The Coffee Paradox Benoit Daviron, Stefano Ponte, 2013-07-18 Can developing countries trade their way out of poverty International trade has grown dramatically in the last two decades in the global economy and trade is an important source of revenue in developing countries Yet many low income countries have been producing and exporting tropical commodities for a long time They are still poor This book is a major analytical contribution to understanding commodity production and trade as well as putting forward policy relevant suggestions for solving the commodity problem Through the study of the global value chain for coffee the authors recast the development problem for countries relying on commodity exports in entirely new ways They do so by analysing the so called coffee paradox the coexistence of a coffee boom in consuming countries and of a coffee crisis in producing countries New consumption patterns have emerged with the growing importance of specialty fair trade and other sustainable coffees In consuming countries coffee has become a fashionable drink and coffee bar chains have expanded rapidly At the same time international coffee prices have fallen dramatically and producers receive the lowest prices in decades This book shows that the coffee paradox exists because what farmers sell and what consumers buy are becoming increasingly different coffees It is not material quality that contemporary coffee consumers pay for but mostly symbolic quality and in person services As long as coffee farmers and their organizations do not control at least parts of this immaterial production they will keep receiving low prices The Coffee Paradox seeks ways out from this situation by addressing some key questions What kinds of quality attributes are combined in a coffee cup or coffee package Who is producing these attributes How can part of these attributes be produced by developing country farmers To what extent are specialty and sustainable coffees achieving these objectives

First We Have Coffee Margaret T. Jensen, 1995 Jensen's warm stories of life as the daughter of a Scandinavian immigrant pastor in the Canadian north touch readers' hearts with timeless lessons of unwavering faith and family love

First We Quit Our Jobs Marilyn J. Abraham, 2011-06-29 What happens when two executives leave their jobs, friends and the city behind to hit the road in a twenty-seven foot RV America the beautiful becomes a place of sights, foods, people, memories and a little wisdom After fifty-two combined years in the corporate fast lane Marilyn Abraham and her husband Sandy MacGregor embarked on an adventure that every work-driven professional dreams about but hardly ever has the courage to realize They quit their jobs and hit the road in order to retrain themselves in the art of living For almost a year the couple traveled nearly 20,000 miles to thirty-one states including Washington, Montana, Colorado, New Mexico, Tennessee and through seven Canadian provinces to Alaska in the hulking RV they named Sue More than just a travelogue First We Quit Our Jobs is the story of recreating one's life and discovering what is real, what is true and what is important Filled with visions of Americana, this personal and touching memoir traces the author's search for meaning in this modern day
