Fisheries Subsidies under International Law Chen-Ju Chen, 2010-09-17 Subsidies to fisheries have been in existence for centuries. However, these remained outside the spotlight of the international community until the turn of this century when the negative effects that fisheries subsidies have on international trade, the environment and sustainable development became increasingly clear. As a result, the Doha Round Negotiations set the parameters for an effective fisheries subsidies regime. WTO Members thus embarked in intensive negotiations with the collaboration of various international organizations. These negotiations culminated with publication of the legal text of the Chairman of the Negotiating Group on Rules in 2007 which reflects to a large extent the mandates of the Ministerial Conferences and reconciles the diverse interests of the negotiators. The EU as a major WTO Member and with its own Common Fisheries Policy which has been in effect for a number of years can serve as the basis for comparison and improvement of the proposed regulations. Report of the Workshop on the Harmonization of Marine Fisheries Policy Within Coastal Countries of the Southern African Development Community, Zanzibar, United Republic of Tanzania, 24-27 July 2001 Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2002-01-01 The Workshop discussed the main working documents presented by the project steering committee: a comparative analysis of the fisheries legal frameworks of SADC coastal countries; an analysis of international and intraregional trade of fisheries products; and a synthesis of the national reports prepared by the countries. Agriculture and the WTO Merlinda Ingco, John D. Nash, 2004-03-17 Developing countries have a major stake in the outcome of trade negotiations conducted under the auspices of the World Trade Organization. WTO Agriculture and the WTO Creating a Trading System for Development explores the key issues and options in agricultural trade liberalization from the perspective of these developing countries. Leading experts in trade and agriculture from both developed and developing countries provide key research findings and policy analyses on a range of issues that includes market access, domestic support, export competition, quota administration, methods, food security, biotechnology, intellectual property rights and agricultural trade under the Uruguay Round Agreement on Agriculture. Material is covered in summary and in comprehensive detail with supporting data, a substantial bibliography and listings of online resources. This book will be of interest to policymakers and analysts in the fields of development, economics and commodities pricing and trade. Stories of change Pye-Smith, C., 2014-04-30 Providing a snapshot of CTA's achievements during the last decade, this book is a celebration rather than a conventional impact assessment. Under six broad chapter headings: producer organisations, policy action, ICTs, research and development, providing information to farmers and trade and markets, it gives a fascinating insight into the broad range of activities that CTA has supported through partnerships across Africa, the Caribbean and the Pacific ACP.
