

How Dickens, Hardy and Roy did use endings in their works

"I work hard for a sufficient living, and therefore yes, I do well" comes at the close of Dickens' "Great Expectations", and reveals a latent redemption of Pip's previous condemnation that "the universal struggle" had caused him to be unashamedly "disgusted with his calling and his life". This feature of Dickens' novel's ending allies with the consolidation of the trains of imagery that he seeks to define, alongside the question of the original ending and how it varies the tone of the novel.

Roy's "The God of Small Things" features an ending that paradoxically falls into the line of a non-linear perspective, creating a "sicksweet" atmosphere which she seeks to both personalise and universalise- allowing her to use ending to also extend along trains of imagery. Finally Hardy's own endings both take on a literal quality with the diminuendo nature of both "The Voice" and "At An Inn", but the concept of ending as a metaphorical representation of death also comes across, "Your Last Drive" being a prevalent example.

Hardy's use of ending in his work takes on a multi-dimensional significance in a literal and figurative sense, as he addresses both the close of a poem, and the closing of life. "The Voice" closes with the image of "wind oozing from norward" and the bitter indictment of, "And the woman, calling". This is in great contrast to the opening of the poem, with its lyrical effervescence of "Woman much missed how you call to me, call to me/Saying that now you are not as you were", as the structurally rich lines of enjambment and romanticised passion contrast with the impersonal, antagonised end.

This reveals the idea of the poem having a diminuendo quality, as Hardy uses his ending, and its contrast to the opening, to successfully reflect the depreciation in his relationship that he saw, the depreciation of the colourful "air blue gown" to the neologistically bleak "wan wistlessness". This diminuendo idea also features in "At An Inn", as it flows from an opening of promise, of "bliss like theirs/That would flush our day", as enjambment highlights the depth of bliss that is crucially perceived, rather than physical.

This is highlighted through Hardy's ending, of what he sees as the charade of "love-light", to the point that he equates this lack of love with that of death, appealing to the omnipotent "laws of men" that so often pervade his work to "once let us stand/As we did then", as if reality is in fact worse than the awful past. This superlative of negativity highlights how Hardy uses ending to exemplify his own reality.

However, the concept of ending with Hardy can also take on a much wider significance, and the endings of these wider explorations of "the end" in death and time seek to define Hardy's views on these wider subjects. "Your Last Drive" sees him attempting to demystify his own role, or lack of it, in Emma's death, and it closes with the monosyllabic "You are past love, praise, indifference, blam
