Extinction Evolution And The End Of Man:

Extinction Michael Charles Boulter, 2002 The head of the team analyzing Fossil Record 2 the largest database of information on extinct animals and plants brings us a thoroughly researched introduction to the new developments in the science of life and a chilling account of the effects that humans have had on the planet based on his experience and research

Lost Kingdom: Animal Death in the Anthropocene Wendy A. Wiseman, Burak Kesgin, 2024-03-12 The authors in Lost Kingdom grapple with both the catastrophe of mass animal extinction in which the panoply of earthly life is in the accelerating process of disappearing and with the mass death of industrial animal agriculture Both forms of anthropogenic violence against animals cast the Anthropocene as an era of criminality and loss driven by boundless human exceptionalism forcing a reckoning with and an urgent reimagining of human animal relations Without the sleights of hand that would lump humanity into a singular Anthropos of the Anthropocene the authors recognize the differential nature of human impacts on animal life and the biosphere as a whole while affirming the complexity of animal worlds and their profound imbrications in human cultures societies and industries Confronting the reality of the Sixth Mass Extinction and mass animal death requires forms of narrativity that draw on traditional genres and disciplines while signaling a radical break with modern temporalities and norms Chapters in this volume reflect this challenge while embodying the interdisciplinary nature of inquiry into non human animality at the edge of the abyss historiography cultural anthropology post colonial studies literary criticism critical animal studies ethics religious studies Anthropocene studies and extinction studies entwine to illuminate what is arguably the greatest crisis for all creatures in the past 65 million years

Twilight of the Mammoths Paul S. Martin, 2007-05-08 Paul S Martin s innovative ideas on late quaternary extinctions and wildlife restoration have fueled one of science s most stimulating recent debates He expounds them vividly here and defends them eloquently A must read David Rains Wallace author of Beasts of Eden This is a marvelous read by a giant in American prehistory about one of the greatest mysteries in the earth sciences Tim Flannery author of The Eternal Frontier Whether or not you agree with Paul Martin he has shaped how we think about our Pleistocene ancestors and their role in transforming this planet Ross D E MacPhee Curator of Mammalogy American Museum of Natural History

Darwin's Garden Michael Boulter, 2010-01-12 Five years after returning from his trip around the world young Charles Darwin became the owner of Down House in Kent England where he moved his growing family far away from the turmoil and distractions of London He would live there for the rest of his life and it would become the place where he began work on his masterpiece On the Origin of Species For almost twenty years he used the garden around him as a laboratory In the orchard he conducted experiments on pollination He built a dovecote where breeding new strains of pigeons helped him understand the intricacies of generation On his daily walk along the sandbank he observed how plants competed for survival In solitude he struggled with the ideas of evolution that had haunted him since his voyage which in turn gave him the courage to publish his revolutionary ideas Bringing Darwin s garden to the present day Boulter unfolds a shining portrait of the formation of one of England's greatest thinkers and his relationship with the place he loved and shows how his experiments conducted more than 150 years ago are still revealing new proofs as we continue to search for the origins of life

Biodiversity Kevin J. Gaston, John I. Spicer, 2013-04-22 This concise introductory text provides a complete overview of biodiversity what it is how it arose its distribution why it is important human impact upon it and what should be done to maintain it Timely overview of the serious attempts made to quantify and describe biodiversity in a scientific way Acts as an easy entry point into the primary literature Provides real world examples of key issues including illustrations of major temporal and spatial patterns in biodiversity Designed primarily with undergraduate students and course lecturers in mind it will also be of interest to anyone who requires an overview of and entry to the vast literature on these topics The figures from in the book may be freely downloaded from the book website on wiley.com

A Handbook to Old Testament Exegesis William P. Brown, 2017-03-17 Designed for both Hebrew and non Hebrew students A Handbook to Old Testament Exegesis offers a fresh hands on introduction to exegesis of the Old Testament William P Brown begins not with the biblical text itself but with the reader helping students to identify their own interpretive lenses before engaging the biblical text Brown guides the student through a wide variety of interpretive approaches including modern methodologies feminist womanist Latino a queer postcolonial disability and ecological approaches alongside more traditional methods This allows students to critically reflect on themselves as bona fide interpreters While covering a wide range of biblical passages Brown also highlights two common biblical texts throughout the work to help show how each interpretive approach highlights different dimensions of the same texts Students will appreciate the value of an empathetic inquiry of Scripture that is both inclusive of others and textually in depth

Systemic Management Charles W. Fowler, 2009-03-26 Systemic management describes a holistic objective and universally applicable form of management providing a framework for addressing environmental challenges such as global warming emergent diseases deforestation overpopulation the extinction crisis pollution over fishing and habitat destruction Its goals are the consistently sustainable relationships between humans and ecosystems between humans and other species and between humans and the biosphere This book presents a convincing argument that these goals and the means to achieve them can be inferred from empirical information It describes how comparisons between humans and other species reveal patterns that can serve to guide management toward true sustainability i.e. ways that are empirically observed to work in natural systems This objective approach has rarely been possible in conventional management because sustainability is invariably undermined by conflicting human values Systemic management is presented as a specialized process of pattern based decision making that avoids the inconsistency subjectivity and error in current management practice It clearly demonstrates how mimicking nature's empirical examples of sustainability can circumvent anthropocentric tendencies to overuse misuse human values in management and illustrates the science best suited for achieving sustainability through examples of research that address specific management questions Time Matters Michael Leddra, 2010-04-09 Time Matters provides an invaluable insight into the background behind some of the key concepts we use in Earth science today. It shows the historical context in which these ideas were developed, the important contributions of individual scientists and thinkers, and how these ideas continue to shape our view of science and the world in which we live. The book covers subjects such as the age of the earth, catastrophism vs uniformitarianism, evolution vs creationism, plutonism vs neptunism, continental drift and plate tectonics. It explores the people involved, their ideas, and the scientific and religious power politics involved in the development. It is effectively partly a review of the way in which science works or does not work. The text includes questions and comment boxes which help the reader to appreciate, understand the ideas and concepts that have been included, and their problems, strengths or weaknesses. Accessible introduction does not assume prior knowledge. Teaches scientific thought, particularly the use of evidence. Topic based, uses a set of key geological theories. This book is written for anyone with an interest in geology and the history of science, but will be particularly valuable to university or high school students beginning a study of earth science for the first time.

Creaturely Theology David Clough, 2013-02-11 Creaturely Theology is a ground breaking scholarly collection of essays that maps out the agenda for the future study of the theology of the non human and the post human. A wide range of first rate contributors show that theological reflection on non human animals and related issues are an important though hitherto neglected part of the agenda of Christian theology and related disciplines. The book offers a genuine interdisciplinary conversation between theologians, philosophers and scientists, and will be a standard text on the theology of non human animals for years to come. Contributors include Esther D Reed Exeter, Rachel Muers Leeds, Stephen Clark Liverpool, Neil Messer Lampeter, Peter Scott Manchester, Michael Northcott Edinburgh, Christopher Southgate Exeter.

Bioregionalism and Global Ethics Richard Evanoff, 2010-09-13 While a number of schools of environmental thought including social ecology, ecofeminism, ecological Marxism, ecoanarchism, and bioregionalism have attempted to link social issues to a concern for the environment, environmental ethics as an academic discipline has tended to focus more narrowly on ethics related either to changes in personal values or behavior, or to the various ways in which nature might be valued. What is lacking is a framework in which individual social and environmental concerns can be looked at, not in isolation from each other, but rather in terms of their interrelationships. In this book, Evanoff aims to develop just such a philosophical framework, one in which ethical questions related to interactions between self, society and nature can be discussed across disciplines and from a variety of different perspectives. The central problem his study investigates is the extent to which a dichotomized view of the relationship between nature and culture, perpetuated in ongoing debates over anthropocentric vs ecocentric approaches to environmental ethics, might be overcome through the adoption of a transactional perspective which offers a more dynamic and coevolutionary understanding of how humans interact with their natural environments. Unlike anthropocentric approaches to environmental ethics which often privilege human concerns over ecological preservation, and some ecocentric approaches which place more emphasis on preserving natural environments than on meeting human needs a transactional approach attempts to create more symbiotic and less conflictual modes of interaction between human cultures and natural environments which allow for the flourishing of both

Our Shadowed World Dominic Kirkham, 2019-08-08 Civilization is often equated with the story of human advancement and progress Yet it is also the story of human oppression exploitation war and empire In our own time modern global civilization has brought us to the brink of planetary destruction By offering an understanding of our past this book aims to provide a stimulus to considering a different future Our Shadowed World considers how we have been brought to this point It describes how the fragmented and conflicted state of humanity has progressed from the earliest city states to the devastation of world war and holocaust how civilization has brought its own form of savagery What beliefs have underlain and motivated human action How have humans tried to understand their world Driven by the relentless quest for power by greed and by extreme beliefs the human enterprise today has placed the very idea of civilization under threat the subject of radical questioning Despite a new ecological awareness dedicated to saving the planet from civilization's carelessness and a preoccupation with the nature of apocalyptic thinking a question mark looms over the very survival of humanity in its present state a question mark that now overshadows the world

Straw Dogs John Gray, 2016-03-29 The British bestseller Straw Dogs is an exciting radical work of philosophy which sets out to challenge our most cherished assumptions about what it means to be human From Plato to Christianity from the Enlightenment to Nietzsche and Marx the Western tradition has been based on arrogant and erroneous beliefs about human beings and their place in the world Philosophies such as liberalism and Marxism think of humankind as a species whose destiny is to transcend natural limits and conquer the Earth John Gray argues that this belief in human difference is a dangerous illusion and explores how the world and human life look once humanism has been finally abandoned The result is an exhilarating sometimes disturbing book that leads the reader to question our deepest held beliefs Will Self in the New Statesman called Straw Dogs his book of the year I read it once I read it twice and took notes I thought it that good Nothing will get you thinking as much as this brilliant book Sunday Telegraph

Forestry in a Global Context Roger Sands, 2013-11-12 From the time of hunter gatherers to the present day forests have played a vital role in the development of humanity and society This broad introductory textbook sets world forestry in a social environmental historical and economic context The development of forests grassland and humans is described from the Devonian through to the Age of Agriculture covering the factors determining the distribution of forests the classification of forest types the value and benefits of the forest and the products of the forest and their associated trade The book also explores issues such as sustainable forest management current patterns of deforestation and reforestation and future challenges facing our forests Fully updated throughout and with new contributions from international experts this second edition includes new chapters on climate change and international forest policy and expanded coverage of forest products and bioenergy production
