contemplative poetic approach according to which such a denuding of Nature is a grave trespass In place of these two attitudes Hadot proposes one suggested by the Romantic vision of Rousseau Goethe and Schelling who saw in the veiled Isis an allegorical expression of the sublime Nature is art and art is nature Hadot writes inviting us to embrace Isis and all she represents art makes us intensely aware of how completely we ourselves are not merely surrounded by nature but also part of nature

The Danger of Romance Karen Sullivan, 2018-03-07 The curious paradox of romance is that throughout its history this genre has been dismissed as trivial and unintellectual yet people have never ceased to flock to it with enthusiasm and even fervor In contemporary contexts we devour popular romance and fantasy novels like The Lord of the Rings Harry Potter and Game of Thrones reference them in conversations and create online communities to expound passionately and intelligently upon their characters and worlds But romance is unrealistic critics say doing readers a disservice by not accurately representing human experiences It is considered by some to be a distraction from real literature a distraction from real life and little more Yet is it possible that romance is expressing a truth and a truth unrecognized by realist genres The Arthurian literature of the Middle Ages Karen Sullivan argues consistently ventriloquizes in its pages the criticisms that were being made of romance at the time and implicitly defends itself against those criticisms The Danger of Romance shows that the conviction that ordinary reality is the only reality is itself an assumption and one that can blind those who hold it to the extraordinary phenomena that exist around them It demonstrates that that which is rare ephemeral and inexplicable is no less real than that which is commonplace long lasting and easily accounted for If romance continues to appeal to audiences today whether in its Arthurian prototype or in its more recent incarnations it is because it confirms the perception or even the hope of a beauty and truth in the world that realist genres deny
