Currie, Duncan Thomas, 1998 Recent research on Head Start an enriched preschool program for poor children that effects on test scores fade out more quickly for black children than for white children This paper uses data from the 1988 wave of the National Educational Longitudinal Survey to show that black children who attended Head Start go on to attend schools of worse quality than other black children in the sense that they attend schools in which most children have worse test scores We do not see any similar pattern among white children indicating that on average children attend schools similar to those attended by other white children Moreover stratify by school type we find that gaps in test scores between Head Start and other children are very similar for blacks and whites These patterns suggest that the effects of Head Start may fade out more rapidly among black students than among whites at least in part because black Head Start children are more likely to subsequently attend bad schools United States Code United States, 2008 US National Educational and Social Development Policy Handbook Volume 2 Social Policy: Important Programs and Regulations IBP, Inc., 2015-06-26 US National Educational and Social Development Policy Handbook Volume 2 Social Policy Important Programs and Regulations Working Paper Series, 1998 Popular Science Monthly, 1928 Britannica Review of American Education, 1969 Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2005 United States.
