

The background of the cover is a rich, painterly illustration. It depicts a grand, multi-tiered castle with several prominent towers and battlements, built into a steep, rocky cliff. The architecture is reminiscent of a fairytale or a classic fantasy setting. In the foreground, a small, green, grassy hill slopes down from the left. On this hill, a small figure, possibly a knight or a messenger, is seen riding a white horse. The figure is holding a flag that features a cross, a common symbol in many fantasy narratives. The sky above the castle is filled with soft, white clouds, and the overall color palette is dominated by earthy tones like browns, tans, and greens, with a touch of blue in the sky and the sea visible in the distance.

His three fantasy novels for children are available here in one volume. They are so strange and dreamlike that adults often enjoy them as much as the children. MacDonald says, "For my part, I do not write for children but for the childlike, whether of five or fifty or seventy-five. So whether you are young or just young at heart, this is a book that will enthrall you with its displays of courage and loyalty and with the allegories between the fantastic world painted and the spiritual world MacDonald perceives."
