

A movie poster for the film "Far from Heaven". The central figure is actress Julianne Moore, wearing a red coat and a grey headscarf, looking directly at the viewer with a serious expression. In the background, two men are visible: one in a dark suit and hat (Dennis Quaid) and another in a yellow jacket (Denis Haysbert). The title "FAR FROM HEAVEN" is prominently displayed in large white letters. Above the title, the names of the lead actors are listed. At the bottom, there is a line of small text providing production details and a website URL. The overall color palette is dominated by reds, greys, and blues, creating a somber and dramatic atmosphere.

Far From Heaven John Gill, 2019-07-25 Todd Haynes's 2002 film Far From Heaven has been hailed as a homage to 1950s Hollywood melodrama although anyone tempted to take the film at face value should be warned that it aims to subvert as much as celebrate that genre Impeccably constructed with a care for detail unknown in films from the era it sets out to make key themes from the genre romance across racial barriers and class lines and perhaps the period's greatest taboo romance between members of the same sex utterly explicit when half a century ago those themes had to be encoded in allusion and metaphor Haynes took as his main source Douglas Sirk's 1955 classic All That Heaven Allows although Far From Heaven also references Rainer Werner Fassbinder's bleak portrayal of inter-racial love Fear Eats the Soul 1974 In the context of Haynes's background in the New Queer Cinema movement with films such as Superstar Poison and safe this admixture makes Far From Heaven a rather more complex film than just another well-dressed period pastiche John Gill provides a revealing insight into how Haynes confronts issues of race sexuality and class in a suburban 1950s American neighbourhood Haynes has been evasive when pressed for a definitive explanation of his film although as Gill contends he has left enough evidence lying around on screen for the keen viewer to pick up on numerous disturbing strands at work beneath the glossy surface of this sumptuously presented weepie While it may affect to pass as a classic of the genre Haynes's ultimate aim Gill contends is to undermine the nature and notion of cinema and storytelling

Queer Retrosexualities Nishant Shahani, 2012-02-01 Queer Retrosexualities The Politics of Reparative Return examines the retrospective logic that informs contemporary queer thinking specifically the narrative return to the 1950s in post 1990s queer and LGBT culture in the United States The term Queer Retrosexuality marks the intersection between retrospective thinking and queerness to illustrate not only how to queer retrospection but also how retrospection in some senses can be thought of as always already queer This book examines the historical possibilities that inform the narrative return to the 1950s in queer cultural and literary productions such as Samuel Delany's The Motion of Light in Water Todd Haynes's Far from Heaven Sarah Schulman's Shimmer and Mark Merlis's American Studies all texts that return to a traumatic past marked by shame exile and persecution Queer Retrosexualities inquires into what motivates the return in these texts to a historical moment informed by the bruises and wounds of history but more importantly it poses the question of how such a turn backwards could be theorized as reparative or even hopeful This book shows how the framework of queer retrospection offers new ways of understanding history and culture of reformulating disciplines and institutions and of rethinking traditional modes of political activism and knowledge production Even while it seems counterproductive to return to a historical moment that is marked by the persecution of sexual and racial minorities the book examines how a shared feeling of relationality and community produced by the exile of shame shapes the political value of queer retrosexualities The retrospective return to the 1950s allows queer thinking to move away from the commodification of queer culture in the present that masquerades as progress Thus the book theorizes how traumatic history becomes a valuable resource for the political project of assembling collective memory as the base materials for imagining a different and more queer future

Far from the Angels Ben Tarver, 2000-06-15 A young gringais rescued from Pancho Villa's raid on Columbus New Mexico in 1916 and spirited into Chihuahua She is forced to pass as a boy and live in squalor subject to all the horrors and bloodshed of the 20th century's first major revolution She becomes a pianist spy in a bordello before joining Villa's doradosto fight side by side with her dashing Mexican lover in the cause of land reform and freedom Her dangerous exploits carry her into the far reaches of the Sierra Madre where she encounters both love and death Captain George Patton an officer in General Blackjack Pershing's expeditionary force apprehends this revolutionary Villista discovers she is really a young girl and sends her back to her wealthy father in New York The lure of adventure and her love for the boy she left behind compels her to return to Mexico in search of him so they can continue the fight for justice and the right to pursue their passion and love in peace Tarver a bred in the bone southwesterner knows his milieu well and brings the times the Mexican revolution and his gutsy young heroine to roaring bodacious life Les Roberts prize winning author and a reviewer for The Cleveland Plain Dealer Ben Tarver has crafted another beautifully detailed story of action romance and drama played against the gripping panorama of the Mexican Revolution It will move you to tears and laughter Elaine Boies

editor and critic Staten Island Advance Screening Nostalgia Christine Sprengler, 2009 Through a series of detailed visual analyses of popular films the author demonstrates that the visual creation of pastness does not necessarily sever our connection to history as is commonly claimed but can yield new insights into the relationship between the present and the past
