Farming And Food:

Bringing It to the Table Wendell Berry, 2009-07-28 Only a farmer could delve so deeply into the origins of food and only a writer of Wendell Berry's caliber could convey it with such conviction and eloquence A progenitor of the slow food movement Wendell Berry reminds us all to take the time to understand the basics of what we ingest Eating is an agriculture act he writes Indeed we are all players in the food economy For the last five decades Berry has embodied mindful eating through his land practices and his writing In recognition of that influence Michael Pollan here offers an introduction to this wonderful collection that is essential reading for anyone who cares about what they eat Drawn from over thirty years of work this collection joins bestsellers The Omnivore's Dilemma by Pollan and Animal Vegetable Miracle by Barbara Kingsolver as essential reading for anyone who cares about what they eat The essays address such concerns as How does organic measure up against locally grown What are the differences between small and large farms and how does that affect what you put on your dinner table What can you do to support sustainable agriculture

Hungry for Profit Fred Magdoff, John Bellamy Foster, Frederick H. Buttel, 2000-09-01 Millions go hungry every year in both poor and rich nations yet hundreds of thousands of peasants and farmers continue to be pushed off the land Applied in increasing volumes chemical pesticides and synthetic fertilizers deplete the soil pollute our food and water and leave crops more vulnerable to pest outbreaks The new and expanding use of genetically engineered seeds threatens species diversity This penetrating set of essays explains why corporate agribusiness is a rising threat to farmers the environment and consumers Ranging in subject from the politics of hunger to the new agricultural biotechnologies and in time and place from early modern Europe to contemporary Cuba the contributions to Hungry for Profit examine the changes underway in world agriculture today and point the way toward organic sustainable solutions to problems of food supply

Farming and Food Supply Joseph Hutchinson, 1972

Climate Change and Agricultural Food Production Golam Kibria, 2013 The book Climate Change and Agricultural Food Production Impacts Vulnerabilities and Remedies provides an overview of climate change impacts on all agricultural food producing sectors agriculture livestock and fisheries food contamination and food safety microbial pathogens toxic biological toxic chemical contaminants food security and climate change adaptation and mitigation measures to counteract or minimise or reduce the effects of climate change on agriculture livestock and fisheries It reviews and summarizes research results data and information from the world including Africa Asia Australia Europe Latin America North America Polar Regions and Small Island Nations The book has been structured as textbook reference book and extension book and written in simple and plain English with key facts and acronyms and glossary provided in each with tables and figures to benefit a wide range of readers The key data and information provided in each are highlighted below

Food for the Future Joséé Boveé, François Dufour, 2005-09-02 It's not easy to eat well To choose food wisely you need to know where it comes from and how it's produced As consumers most of us don't know what we're getting and eating in our supermarkets and restaurants When rumours and food scares circulate in the media we panic Since most of us know very little about the real state of agriculture today and the ways in which the global agricultural industry produces the foods that end up on our plates we have no basis on which to make informed judgements In this important new book Jos Bov and Fran ois Dufour two men from modest farming backgrounds who have become international icons of the resistance to global capitalism unveil the workings of the agricultural industry today and lay down the principles for the creation of a new agriculture for the twenty first century Following on from their international bestseller The World is not For Sale Bov and Dufour have joined forces again to build a constructive programme for the food of the future They seek to make available to every citizen the facts they need in order to understand the crisis of agriculture today and to see how we can move beyond it Presenting a positive agenda for a new kind of agriculture they lay the foundations for a renewal of trust between farmers and citizen consumers in a way that would bring food and the production of food back into the heart of modern society

Bet the Farm Beth Hoffman, 2021-10-05
Eloquent and detailed precise and well thought out Read her book and listen Jane Smiley The Washington Post In her late 40s Beth Hoffman decided to upend her comfortable life as a professor and journalist to move to her husband s family ranch in Iowa all for the dream of becoming a farmer There was just one problem money Half of America s two million farms made less than 300 in 2019 and many struggle just to stay afloat Bet the Farm chronicles this struggle through Beth s eyes She must contend with her father in law who is reluctant to hand over control of the land Growing oats is good for the environment but ends up being very bad for the wallet And finding somewhere in the midst of COVID 19 to slaughter grass finished beef is a nightmare If Beth can t make it how can farmers who confront racism lack access to land or don t have other jobs to fall back on hack it Bet the Farm is a first hand account of the perils of farming today and a personal exploration of more just and sustainable ways of producing food

Food for Thought Patrick Herman, Richard Kuper, 2003-12-20
The French radical farmers union Conf d ration Paysanne with its charismatic leader Jos Bov has led the world in demonstrating the possibility of a socially progressive future for farming Rejecting the increasing intensification and industrialisation of agriculture the Conf d ration has argued for the need for local food production by small independent farmers both for the sake of the quality of the food we consume and to support the kind of societies we want to live in Originally published in French Food for Thought has been expanded and adapted for an English speaking audience Patrick Herman and Richard Kuper demonstrate how the European Union s Common Agricultural Policy and now the WTO s Agreement on Agriculture are both designed to encourage an increasingly free market profit maximising destructive agriculture The majority of farmers have lost out and continue to lose Agribusiness thrives at their expense The consequences are dire in terms of social and environmental costs in the industrialised world and devastating for developing countries whose ability to feed themselves is being destroyed along with a massive proportion of their small farmers There are alternatives to outlaw dumping of food on world markets effectively to control the amounts of food produced to share its production fairly among regions and countries to encourage rather than to outlaw the use of import controls There are farmers and other radical organisations struggling in support of these aims worldwide They are at the forefront of the struggle against free market globalisation They hold out the possibility of a radical human centred way of producing our food and organising our society From the Farm to the Table Gary H. Holthaus,2006-12-01 As with other areas of human industry it has been assumed that technological progress would improve all aspects of agriculture Technology would increase both efficiency and yield or so we thought The directions taken by technology may have worked for a while but the same technologies that give us an advantage also create disadvantages It is now a common story in rural America pesticides fertilizers big iron combines and other costly advancements may increase speed but also reduce efficiency while farmers endure debt dangerous working conditions and long hours to pay for the technology Land livelihood and lives are lost in an effort to keep up and break even There is more to this story that affects both the food we eat and our provisions for the future Too many Americans eat the food on their plates with little thought to its origin and in blind faith that government regulations will protect them from danger While many Americans might have grown up in farming families there are fewer family owned farms with each passing generation Americans are becoming disconnected from understanding the sources and content of their food The farmers interviewed in From the Farm to the Table can help reestablish that connection Gary Holthaus illuminates the state of American agriculture today particularly the impact of globalization through the stories of farmers who balance traditional practices with innovative methods to meet market demands Holthaus demonstrates how the vitality of America's communities is bound to the successes and failures of its farmers In From the Farm to the Table farmers explain how their lives and communities have changed as they work to create healthy soil healthy animals and healthy food in a context of often inappropriate federal policy growing competition from abroad public misconceptions regarding government subsidies the dangers of environmental damage and genetically modified crops and the myths of modern economics Rather than predicting doom and despair for small American growers Holthaus shows their hope and the practical solutions they utilize As these farmers tell their stories organic and sustainable farming become real and meaningful As they share their work and their lives they reveal how those concepts affect the food we eat and the land on which it is grown and how vital farming is to the American economy Benchmarking in Food and Farming Dr Lisa Jack,2012-09-28 At a time when food producers have to make significant changes to their businesses in order to survive a review of benchmarking in agriculture and discussion of its future potential is critical This book meets that need by providing an overview of existing benchmarking practices in agriculture and the food supply chain and evaluating the potential of these practices to drive sustainable innovation in food and farming Increasing pressures from commodity markets corporate buyers government and rising input prices particularly fuel prices are creating an environment in which farmers and their advisors are keen to make greater use of performance information for survival and growth Where farmers are diversifying into alternative production methods non agricultural enterprises and on farm production and sales the greater the interest in a wider range of accounting tools for decision making Lisa Jack and her contributors draw on a wide range of data and sources from Australia New Zealand the USA the UK and Europe to provide critical evaluations of what might be considered state of the art benchmarking practices at this time including recent strategic developments such as the use of non financial measures in balanced scorecards The food and farming industry is unusual in that benchmarking takes place among large numbers of small family owned businesses working in a global industry Not only therefore is this book important for those working in food supply chain businesses but also for those involved in the general practice of benchmarking
