Fascism Concepts In Social Thought:

Fascism Mark Neocleous, 1997 This clear accessible overview treats the subject of fascism thematically and provides a conclusion that brings the discussion up to date Mark Neocleous situates fascism between the social and political contradictions of modernity and capitalism In many ways a reaction to the principal political project of the Enlightenment fascism focuses on three central concepts war nature and nation in order to crush violently movements of ideologies of social emancipation such as Marxism and liberalism The destruction of reason that fascism represents shatters Enlightenment universalism and transforms the desire for social liberation into an aggressive nationalism with devastating effects on human life

Social Justice in Twentieth-Century Europe Martin Conway, Camilo Erlichman, 2024-02-28 Social justice has returned to the heart of political debate in present day Europe But what does it mean in different national histories and political regimes and how has this changed over time This book provides the first historical account of the evolution of notions of social justice across Europe since the late nineteenth century Written by an international team of leading historians the book analyses the often divergent ways in which political movements state institutions intellectual groups and social organisations have understood and sought to achieve social justice Conceived as an emphatically European analysis covering both the eastern and western halves of the continent Social Justice in Twentieth Century Europe demonstrates that no political movement ever held exclusive ownership of the meaning of social justice Conversely its definition has always been strongly contested between those who would define it in terms of equality of conditions or of opportunity the security provided by state authority or the freedom of personal initiative the individual rights of a liberal order or the social solidarities of class nation confession or Volk

Warring Fictions Christopher Clarke, 2019-10-08 December 2019 was a catastrophe for Labour After nearly ten years in opposition the party has suffered its fourth straight defeat and is approaching fifteen years since it last won As the soul searching begins Labour s broad church will have to ask at what level do we disagree Since Jeremy Corbyn became leader this has been a central question for the two sides of the left There is constant discussion of splits coups and purges Anger and impotence are felt on both sides Everyone seems to hate each other but no one can agree on why Writing from a centre left perspective Chris Clarke points to where the guts of the dispute lie He argues that disagreements come down to narrative not core values Belief or otherwise in the central myths which drive left populism conflict insurgency and decline represents the true dividing line between pro and anti Corbyn factions Combative but constructive Warring Fictions makes the case for pluralism and questions the premise of Corbynism Rather than a call for faux harmony it s an attempt to break the deadlock providing a route map for the centre left an explanation to the far left and the foundations for a genuine debate between the two
