Environmental Regulation Through Financial Organisations: Comparative Perspectives on the Industrialised Nations Benjamin Richardson, 2002-02-13 This book takes a comparative perspective of practice in the European Union North America Japan and Australasia arguing that existing legal reforms to promote sustainable development are unlikely to be successful unless environmental policy can be diffused and embedded in the financial services sector This sector plays a crucial role in creating the financial conditions that allow much economic development to proceed Financial markets are already highly regulated in pursuance of various public policy objectives and there is scope to adapt existing regulation to incorporate environmental aspects into the financial services sector In terms of specific reforms the book focuses on the role of corporate environmental reporting economic instruments and liability rules to provide a proper context for engaging financial organisations with the environment as well as reforms to the system of prudential regulation that currently governs this sector Beyond the focus on the financial services sector the book raises complex questions regarding the relationship between the state and market institutions in environmental policy and will appeal to scholars from a wide range of disciplines interested in problems of environmental governance The Amenity Value of the Global Climate David

Maddison, 2014-02-25 This text develops and applies a far reaching account of the economic value of climate derived from its amenity value or the benefits which a particular climate provides to the people of that region or country As climate change moves higher on the economic and political agendas reliable measures of the benefits and costs of specific climates and changes to them become ever more critical Detailed studies of a range of countries including Britain the US India and Russia show that the mobility of the population is crucial When individuals are able to move the amenity value of the climate is reflected in land prices and wage rates Without mobility amenity values emerge in patterns of purchasing either to compensate for the disadvantages of the climate or to make best use of it Indices are generated for the cost of living as a function of climate variables and optimal climates are identified to determine who wins and who loses from climate change

Environment in Print United Nations Environment Programme, 2002 The Use of Economic Measures in National Biodiversity Strategies and Action Plans Lucy Emerton, 2001. Economic forces underlie and explain much biodiversity degradation and loss, and economic instruments provide a useful set of tools for strengthening biodiversity conservation, sustainable use, and equitable benefit sharing. If National Biodiversity Strategies and Action Plans are to be effective, they must be justifiable in economic terms. This document reports on a project reviewing the use of economic measures in NBSAPs. It brings together the component activities of the economics review and summarizes and synthesizes this information to provide guidance on experiences, lessons learned, and ways forward in the use of economic measures. Uncovering the Hidden Harvest Bruce M. Campbell, 2012-06-25. Forests and woodlands provide an enormous range of goods and services to society, from timber and firewood to medicinal plants, watershed protection, destinations for tourists, and sacred sites. Only when these are understood and valued can forests and their resources be properly managed and conserved. This work shows how the complicated network of benefits can be untangled and sets out the different approaches needed to value them. It covers the analysis of plant-based markets, non-market valuation, and decision frameworks such as cost-benefit analysis.

Research and Management Practices for Conservation of the Persian Leopard in Iran Arezoo Sanei, 2020-12-11. The population of the Persian leopard (Panthera pardus saxicolor) has drastically declined. This Asian leopard subspecies has disappeared from some parts of its former range. Containing large areas of potential habitats with leopard presence across almost all of its provinces, Iran is known to be the last stronghold for the Persian leopard in the region. This book comprehensively covers research, management, and conservation practices of the Persian leopard, including the first phase of the Persian Leopard National Action Plan in Iran, together with an innovative leopard insurance program and a contingent valuation practice with respect to the wildlife trafficking law enforcement in Iran. Research on a hypothesis about the risk of a major fragmentation and splitting the leopard distribution range in Iran into a northern and a southern part. An innovative and empirically fitted species and region-specific approach for assessing the cumulative effect of land use and land cover changes on the leopard persistence. Distribution modeling of leopard potential habitats on a regional basis, accompanied by ground validation techniques. An evaluation to three threshold rules to define the habitat suitability indices. Persian leopard habitats and relative corridors in the trans boundary areas of the East Azarbaijan province of the northwest of Iran in the Caucasus Ecoregion The innovative research and conservation approaches presented in this book will be of great interest to those studying the leopard and other large carnivore species The innovative models presented in this book about cumulative effect of the land use and land cover changes will be beneficial to land use managers planners and decision makers in selecting wildlife friendly solutions for development programs The strategic and action planning model as well as the leopard compensation program as an insurance scheme are developed specifically for the local condition and leopard status in Iran
