Measuring and Apportioning Rents from Hydroelectric Power Developments Mitchell P. Rothman,2000-01-01 Hydro resources are provided by nature The exploitation of such resources can generate significant economic rent to the owners In the past governments have usually claimed ownership of hydroelectric resources and passed on the rents to their state owned utilities which have used them to expand their systems or provide lower tariffs to their consumers With the restructuring of the electric power sector in many countries a more explicit consideration of hydroelectric rents is required Moreover hydropower resources are often owned by more than one party or at least require cooperation between parties to develop them In this context the measurement and apportionment of hydropower rents between cooperating parties becomes important This paper addresses some of the issues involved in cooperative development of water resources especially for hydroelectric generation It promotes a better understanding of the sources of the benefits and attempts to derive an analytical basis for discussions between cooperating parties This volume will be of interest to hydropower resource earning countries hydropower developers and Bank staff

Trade and Transport Facilitation John Raven,2001-01-01 The report focuses on transport facilitation in developing countries in order to help promote trade in exports and economic growth Each country has its own set of special characteristics including significant border entry and import points This report provides an analytical tool for those working in the field complemented by practical suggestions in order to identify facilitation problems and create effective remedial action plans This report is an expanded version of the publication Trade and Transport Facilitation An Audit Methodology ISBN 0821347195 published by the World Bank in 2000

Financing of Private Hydropower Projects Chris R. Head,2000-01-01 Concerns about global warming and the availability of clean renewable sources of energy are increasing However as private companies take over state power utilities the demand for profit has stifled those concerns Currently the private sector is building over 40 megawatts of fossil fuel thermal plants for each new megawatt of hydropower This report examines the reasons for building fewer hydropower plants and looks at ways to eliminate some of the drawbacks It studies ten privately financed hydro schemes which represent all but the smaller projects likely to be considered for private financing in the future The projects are located in five countries where the power sector is at different stages of maturity and deregulation They include multi and single purpose projects intended for both domestic supply and export

Ukraine on the Road to Europe Lutz Hoffmann,Felicitas Möllers,2012-12-06 by Viktor A Yushchenko Prime Minister of Ukraine The intensification of the integration processes on our continent entirely coincides with the national interests of Ukraine a country which is undoubtedly European both geographically and politically What kind of Europe do we now have and what should it be in the future What should the role of Ukrainian society be in the economic social and cultural integration of the countries on the European continent These questions are the subject of research and scientific analysis by the well known economists whose work is contained in this book Let there be no doubt the strategic goal of Ukraine s foreign policy is the active participation of our country in the European integration process Thus the move toward co operation and gradual integration with the European Union was defined as one of the main priorities of the Ukrainian Government s programme Reforms for Well being which is based on President Leonid Kuchma s speech Ukraine Steps into XXI century and was approved by the Ukrainian Parliament This move is not a hasty response to a new trend but rather a pragmatic decision since the EU will define the face of Europe for the next century Facets of Globalization Shahid Yusuf,Simon J. Evenett,Weiping Wu,2001-01-01 Since 1985 national economies have become increasingly integrated into a global network At the same time both population and production in developing countries are becoming concentrated in urban regions This in turn has generated demands for more local autonomy shifting more decision making to sub national levels Globalization is expected to continue leading to greater openness and international mobility of capital and people There are few reasons to believe that these trends will abate if anything they are likely to intensify the focus on cities and sharpen competition among these for international and local resources This volume underscores the transformative role of globalization and urbanization and shows the interplay between the two forces

Management and Resolution of

Banking Crises Jose de Luna-Martinez, 2000-01-01 WBI Learning Resources Series Water is a vital element for agricultural production and for economic development in general. However, the spatial and temporal distribution of water in Mexico restrains its use. Because of this distribution, it has been necessary to build a large infrastructure to capture, store, and allot this element among water users. Around the world, countries that once promoted more government involvement in irrigation management are adopting new policies that do just the opposite, creating incentives for farmers to take over the management of operations and maintenance while government agencies focus on improving the management of water at the main system level. Is this just another management fad, or will the pendulum that is now swinging toward greater management control by farmers soon swing back the other way toward greater state control? This volume reports on four countries where the state's role in irrigation management has undergone fundamental change and where the result has been a much greater management role for farmers. These studies address the political antecedents of participatory irrigation management (PIM) policies, the process of implementing the policies, and the second-generation challenges of sustaining PIM. These experiences will prove useful to policymakers and irrigation professionals who are facing similar challenges in their own countries.

Hungary has been a pioneer in local government reform, and the Hungary Subnational Development Program (SNDP) proves the value of an integrated approach.
