Integration is provided always in mind the perspective of economic integration and therefore the ongoing battle of the two approaches to gain more importance in the process While doing so I analyse phases or stages in which one of these approaches has been increasingly dominant in the integration process and try to analyse why this special pattern has occurred At the end of my paper I combine the economic perspective to integration with a more general but interesting concept to integration processes which could help to overcome the increasing stagnation tendencies in European Integration that is one of the main findings of my earlier analysis Although this Concept named Differentiated Integration provides one with extensive measures to reform the integration process I limit the perspective to mostly the changes and proposals with importance to economic integration as this is the core issue of this paper Thus the final presentation of reform proposals is less focused on how the European Union as a final Political Union could look like in the far future but more on how to overcome stagnation tendencies and gain dynamic impulses again with more technically orientated middle term actions

European Economic Integration Frank McDonald, Stephen Dearden, 1999-01 This text is an accessible and comprehensive introduction to the theory of economic integration and to the principle economic policies of the EU The Economics of European Integration Willem Molle, 1997 Progressive integration has been a significant characteristic of economic development in the last few decades worldwide and in Europe where it has found expression notably in the European Community EC now the European Union EU The issue of monetary integration has been central to the discussion on European economic integration This text aims to select the more relevant aspects and developments placing them in a robust conceptual structure and integrate theoretical developments with the results of empirical research and of policy analysis The authors explain the logic of the dynamic process describe the structural features of the European economy and depict the historical developments so as to give a sound basis for the understanding of the present situation and the likely future developments In addition it sets the European developments in the light of global developments This revised edition covers recent developments such as the setting up of the economic and monetary union the widening of the EU updated data and integrates the results of recent theoretical and empirical work The Economics of European Integration - The Single Market Programme and its weaknesses Susanne Jung, 2003-01-09 Seminar paper from the year 2002 in the subject Economics International Economic Relations grade 2 0 B University of Canterbury Economics course The Economics of European Integration language English abstract Economic integration can be defined as a long term process in which several stages improve the level of integration The first step is a free trade area in which internal visible trade restrictions customs duties quotas between partner countries are removed Examples for those forms of economic integration are the North American Free Trade Area NAFTA and the Asian Free Trade Area AFTA Adding a common external tariff for non member countries to the elimination of internal trade obstacles creates ensuing a Customs Union The next level of integration the single market for commodities is achieved by removing visible and invisible trade barriers Therefore all restrictions on trade between member countries are abolished and a common external tariff is imposed on external countries. Following to this level free factor mobility of production and of financial assets generate a common market. Next steps to economic integration are the Monetary and lastly the Economic Union by having a common currency and policy. Theme of this essay is critical arguments of disestablish trade barriers towards the European Union EU and its underlying economic theories in respect to the Single Market Programme SMP its aims and if they are achieved in terms of labour and social policies. Therefore it is necessary to have a focus on the removal of non tariff barriers NTBs exemplary for goods and labour.
