Lindquist, Scott M. Dresden, 2019-05-15 Care for older adults in Emergency Departments EDs has historically been focused on acute medical conditions with little emphasis on geriatric specific issues In 2010 emergency departments EDs throughout the nation saw almost 130 million patients 15% of whom were 65 or older The number of older adults who visit an ED has doubled in the last decade and continues to grow rapidly Older adults receiving care in an ED are highly likely to be admitted to the hospital much more so than their younger counterparts Preventing a hospital admission saves older adults from frequently encountered adverse events including hospital acquired delirium functional status impairment cognitive loss and nursing home admission It is unknown how many older adults are hospitalized for reasons other than acute medical illness such as functional decline polypharmacy progressive dementia caregiver stress or unstable living situation These non emergent conditions are rarely addressed during a typical ED visit due to lack of resources significant patient volumes and the need for rapid turnover of care spaces The predominant management strategy of emergency physicians to handle these important but not imminently life threatening geriatric issues is to recommend hospital admission Northwestern has pioneered the Geriatric Emergency Department through the creation of the Geriatric Emergency Department Innovation model GEDI with goals to prevent admissions for older adults by assessing and meeting their geriatric specific non acute care needs in the ED The GEDI model at Northwestern centers on a multi disciplinary curriculum composed of clinical didactic and practical arms developed by emergency medicine and geriatrics educational experts In this title we will present case studies of older adults seen in the Emergency Department through the GEDI model and discuss means of identifying screening for diagnosing and treating geriatric syndromes seen in the emergent care of the older adult patient In addition there will be a set of concise take home points for each case study that will be easy to commit to memory and implement in clinical care of older adults As the number of seniors seeking emergent care will continue to increase the ED setting must become responsive to geriatric specific needs This book will provide a variety of models detailing how to offer comprehensive state of the art optimal care for managing the full range of geriatric syndromes that regularly present in the emergent care setting
