The Challenge Of Making Cities Liveable In East Asia John Wong, Liang Fook Lye, 2016-06-03 The rate of urbanisation will accelerate in the years ahead The massive influx of people to cities will result in the demand for more services expending more resources and generating more waste The forces of globalisation and better connectivity will hasten this urbanisation process Although the developed and developing countries in East Asia are at different stages of development they have to grapple with the common challenge of improving the quality of life for urban residents and making cities liveable This book brings together a collection of articles that traces the process of urbanisation in selected countries in East Asia including the achievements and challenges encountered. It seeks to promote the sharing of best practices and experiences that can be a reference for governments and relevant stakeholders to facilitate the process of urbanisation that brings about the greatest benefits to residents and lessens the negative impact on the environment.

Transition and Challenge Zhongwei Zhao, Fei Guo, 2007-02-22 With the largest population in the world, China has experienced significant demographic, social and economic changes in recent decades. Extraordinary demographic changes took place in China in the second half of the twentieth century, having wide-ranging consequences. This book, written by a group of leading experts, examines these profound changes in an effort to understand their long-term impact and provide an up-to-date account of China's demographic reality. The volume provides a comprehensive and authoritative analysis of a wide range of issues such as China's unprecedented family planning program, the impact of falling birth rates coupled with increasing life expectancy, changes in marriage patterns and increasing rural-urban migration. Anyone who is interested in China and its recent demographic changes will benefit from the rich materials and thorough analysis provided in this book.

America's Challenge Michael D. Swaine, 2012-05-01 The emergence of the People's Republic of China on the world scene constitutes the most significant event in world politics since the end of World War II. As the world's predominant political, economic and military power, the United States faces a particularly significant challenge in responding to China's rising power and influence, especially in Asia. Offering a fresh perspective on current and future U.S. policy toward China, Michael Swaine examines the basic interests and beliefs behind U.S.-China relations, recent U.S. and Chinese policy practices in seven key areas, and future trends most likely to affect U.S. policy. American leaders, he concludes, must reexamine certain basic assumptions and approaches regarding America's position in the Western Pacific, integrate China policy more effectively into a broader Asian strategy, and recalibrate the U.S. balance between cooperative engagement and deterrence toward Beijing.

This volume explores the relationship between globalization and regionalization between states, markets and civil society, and between U.S. hegemony and Asian aspirations.

Globalization and the New Asia Pasquale De Marco, 2025-05-08 The world is changing rapidly and Asia is at the center of this change. The region is home to some of the world's fastest-growing economies, and its population is expected to grow by more than 1 billion people by 2050. This growth is having a profound impact on the world, and it is creating new opportunities and challenges for businesses, governments and individuals. In Globalization and the New Asia, Pasquale De Marco explores the impact of globalization on Asia and the world. Pasquale De Marco argues that globalization is a powerful force that is transforming the region and that it is creating new opportunities for economic growth, poverty reduction and social progress. However, Pasquale De Marco also argues that globalization is a double-edged sword and that it can also lead to inequality, environmental degradation and social unrest. Globalization and the New Asia is a timely and important book that provides a comprehensive overview of the impact of globalization on Asia Pasquale De Marco provides a balanced and nuanced analysis of the challenges and opportunities that globalization presents and he offers a number of recommendations for how to manage globalization so that it benefits all This book is essential reading for anyone who wants to understand the future of Asia and the world It is a valuable resource for businesses governments and individuals who are looking to navigate the challenges and opportunities of globalization Pasquale De Marco is a leading expert on globalization and Asia He has written extensively on the subject and he has advised governments and businesses on how to manage globalization Pasquale De Marco is a Professor of Economics at the University of California Berkeley and he is the Director of the Berkeley Center for Globalization and Development Globalization and the New Asia is a must read for anyone who wants to understand the future of Asia and the world It is a valuable resource for businesses governments and individuals who are looking to navigate the challenges and opportunities of globalization If you like this book write a review on google books
