The New Historians of the Twelfth-century Renaissance Peter Damian-Grint,1999 Examination of the striking new style of writing history in the twelfth century by men such as Gaimar Wace and Ambroise The mid twelfth century saw the sudden appearance of a remarkable group of writers the new historians authors such as Geoffrey Gaimar Benoît de Sainte Maure Wace Jordan Fantosme and Ambroise who were the earliest historical writers to use French Each had his own style and authorial persona yet together despite their considerable differences they pioneered a common form of historical writing which is quite distinct from the styles of previous vernacular writers This book studies some of the more characteristic elements of the common style used by the vernacular historians Their detached and self-conscious authorial presentation is particularly notable it is seen both in the prologues and epilogues to their works where they present their source materials as reliable themselves as serious scholars and their works as worthy of belief and constantly throughout the text as the historians direct audience response to their work The author shows how this historical style fits into both the vernacular and the Latin literature current in the period the vernacular historians borrowed elements from both the learned and the popular traditions to produce their own successful and vigorous hybrid one which was still producing new shoots as late as the fifteenth century and which was widely copied and imitated by both writers of courtly romance and by writers of prose history Dr PETER DAMIAN GRINT teaches at Brasenose College Oxford
