Faber Of Exploration:

The Faber Book of Exploration Benedict Allen, 2002 What is an explorer What do Scott and Amundsen Stanley and Livingstone Burton and Speke Columbus and Cortes Lewis and Clark Captain Cook and Marco Polo have in common Benedict Allen's anthology of human exploration brings vividly to life what it feels like to walk off the edge of the known world to emerge dazed dying yet triumphant from the Amazon jungle to stand on the roof of the world Through the words of those who have set off into the unknown and returned to bring this unknown back to their people the places themselves seem to speak This volume ranges across various terrain hot and cold deserts mountains and plains jungles and high seas bringing together Vikings and missionaries conquistadors and botanists to name but a few among an array of unlikely travelling companions whose description of their experiences will help us to understand and appreciate what kind of attributes make a true explorer Ian Hamilton once observed The age of adventure is far from dead so long as people like Benedict Allen tread the earth Whatever you call him traveller modern day explorer or adventurer there is no doubting Benedict Allen's voracious appetite for exploration and as such he is our ideal guide across these extraordinary pages

Establishing this informal imperial system involved a triangle of actors in London the subcontinent and the Gulf region itself By the nineteenth century s end amid renewed waves of inter imperial competition this nexus of British interests and narratives in the Gulf region would occasion the appearance of a new name the Middle East Charting the spatial political and cultural emergence of the Middle East Inventing the Middle East reveals the deep roots of the twentieth century s geographic upheavals
