Economic Instruments For Air Pollution Control:

Economic Instruments for Air Pollution Control Ger Klaassen, Finn R. Førsund, 2012-12-06 Economic theory and empirical models suggest that economic instruments should help us to meet environmental goals at lower cost Practical experience however shows that the cost savings of emission trading are smaller than expected and charges usually have had small incentive impacts This book gives the first comprehensive review of economic theory simulation models and practical experience with the use of economic instruments The book focuses on air pollution control Part I examines theoretical aspects and simulation modeling in a national context Part II surveys the practical experience in a variety of countries Part III explores international issues such as joint implementation Because of its unique blend of theoretical and empirical research the book will prove interesting for both economists and those interested in environmental policy Survey of Economic Instruments for Air Pollution Control, 1991

Economic Instruments for Air Pollution Control in Sweden Kerstin Lövgren, 1994

The role of economic instruments within the Mexico City air pollution control policy Andres Flores-Montalvo, 1998

Alternative Approaches to Pollution Control and Waste Management Janis D. Bernstein, World Bank, 1993

The Theory and Practice of Command and Control in Environmental Policy Peter Berck, 2018-01-12 This title was first published in 2003 Economists have had increasing success in arguing the merits of market based approaches to environmental problems By making polluting expensive market based approaches provide polluters with incentives to clean up rather than mandates to stop polluting These approaches include pollution taxes transferable emissions permits and subsidies for pollution abatement The purpose of this volume is to explore the situations where Command and Control CAC may not be all bad and in fact might even have some advantages over market based instruments MBI

Using Economic Instruments to Control Air Pollution from Stationary Sources, 1994

Environmental Economic Series Using Economic Instruments to Control Air Pollution from Stationary Sources Walter MOORE, NSW Environment Protection Authority, 1994

Economic Instruments of Pollution Control in an Imperfect World Tingsong Jiang, 2003 In this book Tingsong Jiang extensively discusses the wider issues of economic instruments of pollution control as well as paying specific attention to the control of carbon dioxide emissions in China The book begins with a general analysis of economic instruments of pollution control and is followed by the application of these in CO2 emission control The former presents the discussion of pollution control policies in general equilibrium settings focusing on the comparison of pollution taxes and tradable permits in certain kinds of circumstances with imperfections such as uncertainty and pre existing distortions An empirical evaluation of China s environmental policies is also included The latter brings the discussion into the area of global warming policies with the focus on the implications to China A dynamic general equilibrium model G Cubed T is developed to produce CO2 emissions projections from China the US and the rest of the world and to simulate various policy targets and instruments China may adopt to control its CO2 emissions With its systematic evaluation of China's environmental policy this thorough and rigorous assessment will be invaluable reading for academics in environmental economics and environmental management policy analysts in environmental protection and global warming fields policymakers and government officials around the world as well as China specialists
