by N. A. M. Dixon and J. D. Laidlaw, Edinburgh University, 1968

There is a wealth of very good material on the land use of upland Scotland. However, in previous years, the material has been scattered in a number of different journals, and it is not possible to find a single volume which contains all the material. This book is a valuable addition to the literature on the land use of upland Scotland. It is a comprehensive survey of the land use of upland Scotland, and it is written in a clear and concise style. The book is divided into two main parts. The first part is a general survey of the land use of upland Scotland, and the second part is a detailed study of the land use of a specific area. The book is written for a general audience, and it is suitable for use as a textbook or as a reference work.
