Economic integration in NAFTA and EU: A comparative analysis Wolf Seiler, 2007-07-05 Seminar paper from the year 2005 in the subject Business economics Economic Policy grade 1 3 LMU Munich course Regionalisierung der internationalen Handelsordnung language English abstract The two regional trading agreements NAFTA and EU differ greatly not only in their economic but also political approaches to regional integration The paper describes the differences in the two regional trading agreements starting with the respective institutions and their structures After that follows an analysis of indicators of their economic integration that will in a next step allow us to assess and compare them This general assesment is followed by a more detailed comparison of how poorer members of NAFTA and EU namely the cohesion countries in the EU and Mexico in NAFTA have profited from the regional economic integration drives Concluding remarks are given on positive and negative integration in both regional agreements Economic Integration in NAFTA and the EU Kirsten Appendini, Sven Bislev, 2016-01-20 The institutions of the EU and NAFTA are critically analysed by leading American and European scholars The book covers both the general problems of building new and integrated markets and several policy areas that are related to economic integration The institutions established in both Europe and America are seen as deficient in several respects Without offering adequate replacements the economic integration projects are actually undermining some of the core institutions that serve the needs of the market economies institutions on which the integration process itself depends Economic Integration in NAFTA and the EU Kirsten Appendini, 1999 European Socio-Economic Integration Elias G. Carayannis, George M.
