Economic Restructuring In The Former Soviet Bloc The Case Of Housing:

Economic Restructuring of the Former Soviet Bloc Raymond J. Struyk, 1996 Housing and finance reform are two of the fundamental building blocks for creating a viable market oriented economy out of a former socialist system This book provides a comparative analysis of market oriented housing sector reform in nine countries including Hungary the Czech Republic Poland Estonia and Russia For each country experts lay out the basic housing situation housing production housing finance and home ownership subsidies rental housing and likely future developments This book is written on the basis of first hand on site experience with the market oriented housing reform process in the countries discussed

Economic Restructuring of the Former Soviet Bloc Raymond J. Struyk, 1996-01-01 Housing and housing finance reform are essential for creating a viable market oriented economy out of a former socialist system This book assesses and compares market oriented housing sector reforms in seven countries Hungary Slovenia the Czech Republic Poland Estonia Armenia and Russia For each country experts lay out the basic housing situation housing production finance and home ownership subsidies rental housing and likely future developments The authors write on the basis of firsthand on site experience with market oriented housing reform in the countries they discuss

Economic Restructuring of the Former Soviet Bloc Raymond J. Struyk, 1996 The countries of Eastern Europe have been on the long road to the market for more than a decade And while the macroeconomic record has been well documented there has been little analysis of individual country and cross sector progress This book offers detailed comparative analysis of the housing sector in seven countries as a window to understanding the developments beyond the headlines The authors document housing progress towards reliance on markets how easy it is for families to buy housing and how the housing sector has contributed to macroeconomic stabilization in Hungary Slovenia the Czech and Slovak Republics Poland Russia Armenia and Estonia

Social Housing in Transition Countries Jozsef Hegedus, Martin Lux, Nóra Teller, 2013 This volume intends to fill the gap in the range of publications about the post transition social housing policy developments in Central and Eastern Europe by delivering critical evaluations about the past two decades of developments in selected countries social housing sectors and showing what conditions have decisively impacted these processes Contributors depict the different paths the countries have taken by reviewing the policy changes the conditions institutions work within and the solutions that were selected to answer the housing needs of vulnerable households They discuss whether the differences among the countries have emerged due to the time lag caused by belated reforms in selected countries or whether any of the disparities can be attributed to differences inherited from Soviet times Since some of the countries have recently become member states of the European Union the volume also explores whether there were any convergence trends in the policy approaches to social housing that can be attributed to the general changes brought about by the EU accession

The Policy-Making Process and Social Learning in Russia Marina Khmel'nitskaya, 2016-04-29 Centering its study around three explanatory variables actors institutions and ideas this book argues that Russia's hybrid institutional environment reduces the competition of policy ideas both at the stage of policy elaboration by the community of state and non state policy experts and also at the stage of policy adoption by parliament

The World Bank and the Globalisation of Housing Finance Liam Clegg, 2017-10-27 The World Bank remains one of the most prominent actors in the field of global development and one of the foremost international organisations in contemporary global politics Over its history its lending for housing has mortgaged development by prioritising financial sector expansion over the needs of low income groups Through this book Liam Clegg explores the drivers of World Bank operational practices and the contribution of these operations to state transformations across the global South

Transformation of Cities in Central and Eastern Europe F. E. Ian Hamilton, Kaliopa Dimitrovska Andrews, Nataša Pichler-Milanović, 2005 Annotation This volume is one in a series initiated by the United Nations University Institute of Advanced Studies on the inter relationship between globalisation and urban transformation It identifies and describes the inter and intra urban transformations of Central and Eastern European cities and considers their pre 1945 historic legacies the socialist period and their contemporary transition towards market oriented and democratic systems The dramatic changes since 1989 including the collapse of Communist ideology the break up of the Soviet Union Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia the end of the Cold War and the impact of globalisation and European integration have reconfigured this region and affected their re integration into European and global networks This book first examines the similarities and differences between significant Central and Eastern European cities comparing the differing patterns of historical context and socialist legacies before 1990 and the impacts of internal and external forces on re shaping these cities and their paths of transformation since 1990 It also examines the role of contemporary planning within the overall development of Central and Eastern European cities The conclusion demonstrates the similarities and differences between Central and Eastern European cities and their re integration into global networks

The Wiley-Blackwell Encyclopedia of Urban and Regional Studies Anthony M. Orum, 2019-04-15 Provides comprehensive coverage of major topics in urban and regional studies Under the guidance of Editor in Chief Anthony Orum this definitive reference work covers central and emergent topics in the field through an examination of urban and regional conditions and variation across the world It also provides authoritative entries on the main conceptual tools used by anthropologists sociologists geographers and political scientists in the study of cities and regions Among such concepts are those of place and space geographical regions the nature of power and politics in cities urban culture and many others The Wiley Blackwell Encyclopedia of Urban and Regional Studies captures the character of complex urban and regional dynamics across the globe including timely entries on Latin America Africa India and China At the same time it contains illuminating entries on some of the current concepts that seek to grasp the essence of the global world today such as those of Friedmann and Sassen on global cities It also includes discussions of recent economic writings on cities and regions such as those of Richard Florida Comprised of over 450 entries on the most important topics and from a range of theoretical perspectives Features authoritative entries on topics ranging from gender and the city to biographical profiles of figures like Frank Lloyd Wright Takes a global perspective with entries providing coverage of Latin America and Africa India and China and the US and Europe Includes biographies of central figures in urban and regional studies such as Doreen Massey Peter Hall Neil Smith and Henri Lefebvre The Wiley Blackwell Encyclopedia of Urban and Regional Studies is an indispensable reference for students and researchers in urban and regional studies urban sociology urban geography and urban anthropology Hard Budgets & Soft States John Eatwell,2000 Shows that the welfare state makes a fundamental contribution to economic efficiency and should be an important component of a policy for a successful transition Transformations in Hungary Peter Meusburger,Heike Jöns,2001 During the first decade after the turn towards democracy and market economy Hungary's society experienced profound changes that affected its regions towns villages and individual places in different ways This is documented by thirteen essays that analyse related political legal institutional and socio economic structures and processes in time and space in order to contribute to a further understanding of Hungary's ongoing transformation processes and its current situation as one of the leading candidates for EU membership The topics include constitutive elements of a modern market economy such as banking foreign direct investment entrepreneurship knowledge resources the labour market and the housing market Further essays explore education and income structures the poverty situation post communist voting behaviour regional and urban development as well as Hungary's cross border co operations With regard to European integration processes the role of Budapest within the European city system and Hungary's economic situation within Europe are discussed Drawing together comprehensive empirical data and a great variety of viewpoints this collection of essays offers innovative examples of the application of different theoretical approaches to studies of economy and society in general and transformation studies in particular Political Elites and the New Russia Anton Steen,2004-06-01 Political Elite and the New Russia convincingly argues that although reforms in Russia have been initiated by those close to the President in fact local and national elites have been the crucial strategic actors in reshaping Russia's economy democratising its political system and decentralising its administration This book analyses the role of elites under Yeltsin and Putin discussing the extent to which they form a coherent political culture and how far this culture has been in step with or at odds with the reform policies of the Kremlin leadership Maintaining Utility Services for the Poor ,2000-01-01 Prior to the dissolution of the communist state utility prices were driven by political priorities in Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union Utility prices were kept artificially low until the early 1990s When the cost of these across the board price subsidies became unaffordable one government after another decided to bring residential tariffs closer to supply costs The resulting price adjustment process however turned out to be more painful than originally expected Required large increase in the prices of utility services coincided with a decrease in household income The household income decline paralleled increasing income polarization As a result of these two trends the percentage of the poor within the overall population reached alarming proportions in many countries. Paying utility bills became a major challenge for the rapidly growing army of poor households. Some governments simply pressured utility managers to be lenient with households who did not pay their utility bills. By the middle of the 1990s, most governments recognized that they could not afford leniency. They started to experiment with various subsidy schemes aimed at low income households. To help decision makers choose the best mechanism that suits their specific needs and priorities, Maintaining Utility Services for the Poor provides a conceptual framework and methodology for the evaluation of utility subsidy mechanisms. It also presents the results of applying this methodology in Poland and Russia.

The Quality of Democracy in Eastern Europe Andrew Roberts, 2010. This book presents a positive assessment of democratic quality as it has developed in ten postcommunist countries.

Democracy Building in the Former Soviet Union United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs. Subcommittee on International Operations, 1992.

The Social Limits to Growth Nick Horsewood, Peter Neuteboom, 2006. Home ownership has both positive as well as negative aspects for individuals and society. This book is based on a research which gives an insight into the security and insecurity aspects of home ownership across Europe. It helps you to understand the relationship between the structural position of home ownership in different European countries.

Investments to Improve the Energy Efficiency of Existing Residential Buildings in Countries of the Former Soviet Union Eric Martinot, 1997-01-01. In the 1990s the issue of human resource development in Malaysia has gained prominence in public and private policy circles. Discussions center around training policy where there are concerns about acute labor shortages and around industrial development policy which strives to maintain a skilled and well trained workforce to increase competitiveness and attract foreign direct investment. But policymakers have been forced to make critical decisions on resource allocation and to design policies without access to comprehensive training data especially from the private sector. This usually results in supply oriented policies stemming from mismatches between skills supplied by public training institutions and those actually needed by industry. This report attempts to fill this information gap on private sector training as an aid in formulating training policies that are more demand driven. The report contains rigorous analysis of private sector led training and addresses the issue of whether firms in Malaysia underinvest in training. Data came from the Malaysia Economic Planning Units 1994-95 survey and analysis of 2,200 manufacturing firms. The survey elicited information on firm sponsored training and on a wide range of firm attributes including size, industry, local or foreign ownership, equipment, technology, quality control systems, markets and exports, workforce characteristics, wages and other compensation and production. The data document for the first time the incidence and characteristics of training in Malaysian industry across firms of different sizes, ownership and output profiles. The data create an unprecedented opportunity to study the critical links between training, new technology and quality control. A joint publication of the World Bank, the United Nations Development Programme and the Malaysia Economic Planning Unit.

The Former Soviet Union in Transition John P. Hardt, Richard F. Kaufman, 2016-09-16. This edition of the Joint Economic

Committee's 1993 reports on the economies of the ex Soviet states tracks the Soviet and post Soviet economic reform efforts and looks at issues such as integration and developments
