Follies Of Conservation:

The Follies of Conservation Arthur Stocker Thomas,1975 Ecology & Environ Mgmt Roger Park,2019-04-09 The aim of the present volume is to review the effects of human activity on physical environment processes and this is justified not only as a complement to the approach taken by G P Marsh his volume Man and Nature 1864 but also as a sequel to the work produced since 1864 with contributions since the mid nineteenth century to the study of th Shades of Green Ruth Tittensor,2016-10-31 This book takes a fresh look at the most disliked tree in Britain and Ireland explaining the reasons it was introduced and why it became ubiquitous in the archipelagos of northwest Europe Sitka spruce has contributed to the Pacific Coast landscapes of North America for over ten millennia For the Tlingit First Nation it is the most important tree in terms of spiritual relationships art and products in daily use such as canoes containers fish traps and sweet cakes Since the late nineteenth century it has also been the most important tree to the timber industry of west coast North America The historical background to the modern use of Sitka spruce is explored The lack of cultural reference may explain negative public response when treeless uplands in the UK and Ireland were afforested with introduced conifer species particularly Sitka spruce following two World Wars The multipurpose forestry of today recognizes that Sitka spruce is the most important tree to the timber industry and to a public which uses its many products but fails to recognize the link between growing trees and bought goods The apparently featureless and wildlife less Sitka spruce plantations in UK uplands are gradually developing recognizable ecological features Sitka spruce has the potential to form temperate rain forests this century as well as to produce much needed goods for society The major contribution of Sitka spruce to landscapes and livelihoods in western North America is by contrast widely accepted But conserving natural old growth forests sustaining the needs of First Nations and producing materials for the modern timber industry will be an intricate task Conservation Sourcebook Great Britain. Museums and Galleries Commission. Conservation Unit,1991 From the Acid Rain Information Centre to the Zinc Development Association this guide provides a directory of information on organizations concerned with the conservation of objects and buildings in the United Kingdom Forest and Labor in Madagascar Genese Marie Sodikoff,2012-10-17 Protecting the unique plants and animals that live on Madagascar while fueling economic growth has been a priority for the Malagasy state international donors and conservation NGOs since the late 1980s Forest and Labor in Madagascar shows how poor rural workers who must make a living from the forest balance their needs with the desire of the state to earn foreign revenue from ecotourism and forest based enterprises Genese Marie Sodikoff examines how the appreciation and protection of Madagascar s biodiversity depend on manual labor She exposes the moral dilemmas workers face as both conservation representatives and peasant farmers by pointing to the hidden costs of ecological conservation To Life! Linda Weintraub,2012-09-01 To Life Eco Art in Pursuit of a Sustainable Planet documents the burgeoning eco art movement from A to Z presenting a panorama of artistic responses to environmental concerns from Ant Farm s anti consumer antics in the 1970s to Marina Zurkow's 2007 animation that anticipates the havoc wreaked upon the planet by global warming. This text is the first international survey of twentieth and twenty-first century artists who are transforming the global challenges facing humanity and the Earth's diverse living systems. Their pioneering explorations are situated at today's cultural, scientific, economic, spiritual, and ethical frontiers. The text guides students of art, design, environmental studies, and interdisciplinary studies to integrate environmental awareness, responsibility, and activism into their professional and personal lives.

Decolonizing Conservation Dean Sully, 2016-09-16. This book argues for an important shift in cultural heritage conservation away from a focus on maintaining the physical fabric of material culture toward the impact that conservation work has on people's lives. In doing so, it challenges the commodification of sacred objects and places by western conservation thought and attempts to decolonize conservation practice. To do so, the authors examine conservation activities at Maori marae meeting houses located in the US, Germany, and England and contrast them with changes in marae conservation in New Zealand. A key case study is the Hinemihi meeting house transported to England in the 1890s where it was treated as a curiosity by visitors to Clandon Park for over a century and more recently as a focal point of cultural activity for UK Maori communities. Recent efforts to include various Maori stakeholder communities in the care of this sacred structure is a key example of community-based conservation that can be replicated in heritage practice around the world.

Conservation's Roots Abigail P. Dowling, Richard Keyser, 2020-06-11. The ideas and practices that comprise conservation are often assumed to have arisen within the last two centuries. However, while conservation today has been undeniably entwined with processes of modernity, its historical roots run much deeper. Considering a variety of preindustrial European settings, this book assembles case studies from the medieval and early modern eras to demonstrate that practices like those advocated by modern conservationists were far more widespread and intentional than is widely acknowledged. As the first book-length treatment of the subject, Conservation's Roots provides broad social, historical, and environmental context for the emergence of the nineteenth-century conservation movement.

Conservation and the City Peter Larkham, 2002-03-11. It is a widely held belief that cities must change or they will wither and die. One of the key problems of urbanization is how to cope with these changes while retaining the structures constructed and maintained by previous generations. Conservation and the City is a study of conservation and change throughout the built environment: city centres, suburbs, and even tiny villages, and how the activities of conservation interact with the planning system. Using detailed case studies from Britain and the Westernized world, the author examines some of the key social, economic, and psychological ideas which support conservation as well as studying the urban landscape and the agents of change. Conservation and the City seeks to understand urban conservation and, in doing so, presents possible solutions for managing change in the built environment of the future.
