Friend Or Foe:

Friend Or Foe? Michael J. Strada, Harold Martin Troper, Harold R. Troper, 1997 During the nearly sixty years of filmmaking the always uneasy and often fractious Soviet American relationship has been mirrored in Hollywood's portrayal of Russians and the Soviet Union Friend or Foe examines the portrayal of the Soviet Union in American film and shows how these films reflect the attitudes of Americans as well as how each portrayal changed with the often uneasy relations between the two countries The authors show how films as rich repositories of national consciousness can be analyzed to reveal time bound insights into popular fears and obsessions History lovers and film buffs will appreciate the tongue in cheek approach to many of the absurdist films Scholars in history film studies and political science will find the depth and breadth of research useful A filmography bibliography and photographs further complement the study Friend or Foe? Babylon in the Book of Jeremiah MT John Hill, 2021-09-06 This work presents a literary interpretation of Babylon in the book of Jeremiah MT It moves beyond historical critical approaches which have long dominated Jeremiah research and shows that metaphor is central to a synchronic reading of the book The study shows that Babylon is a multi layered metaphor at one level it is the archetypal enemy of both Judah and its God at another level it is metaphorically identified with Judah The study also explores the idea of the unended exile and shows how this idea so central to post exilic Judaism is also found in the book of Jeremiah MT Friend or Foe Paul Kemp, 1993-09-14 During the Second World War there were over 100 instances of naval engagements between ships submarines and aircraft of the same side In the past there has often been a reluctance by the authorities to admit to these losses but with operational records now available it is possible for historians to explain how a good number of ships and submarines were attacked damaged or sunk by the forces of their own side Friend Or Foe

Hägerdal, 2021-07-06 When civil conflicts break out in plural societies violence often occurs along group divides running the risk of spiraling into ethnic cleansing Yet for militants who do not seek ethnic separation as a political goal indiscriminate attacks are detrimental to their cause Under what circumstances are such combatants more or less likely to commit ethnic violence Nils Hägerdal examines the Lebanese civil war to offer a new theory that highlights the interplay of ethnicity and intelligence gathering He shows that when militias can obtain reliable intelligence particularly in demographically intermixed areas where information can cross ethnic boundaries they are likely to refrain from indiscriminate tactics Access to local intelligence helps armed groups distinguish between neutral and hostile non coethnics to target individual opponents while leaving civilians in peace Conversely when militias struggle to access local information they often fall back on ethnicity as a proxy for political allegiance with bloody consequences As intelligence capabilities shape the course of sectarian strife the role of ethnicity can vary even within a particular conflict H gerdal conducted sixteen months of fieldwork in Lebanon interviewing former militia fighters and commanders and collecting novel statistical evidence He combines documentation by government agencies NGOs local news media and the United Nations with firsthand narratives by participants to provide an unparalleled account of the processes that generate violence or coexistence when a diverse society descends into armed conflict Theoretically innovative and descriptively rich Friend or Foe sheds new light on the logic and dynamics of ethnic violence in civil wars
