From Child Abuse To Permanency Planning Child Welfare Services Pathways And Placements:

From Child Abuse to Permanency Planning Richard P. Barth, Vicky Albert, Mark Courtney, Jill Duerr Berrick, 2017
More than two million child abuse reports are filed annually on behalf of children in the United States. Each of the reported children becomes a concern at least temporarily of the professional who files the report and each family is assessed by additional professionals. A substantial number of children in these families will subsequently enter foster care. Until now the relationships between the performance of our child welfare system and the growth and outcomes of foster care have not been understood. In an effort to clarify them, Barth and his colleagues have synthesized the results of their longitudinal study in California of the paths taken by children after the initial abuse report: foster care, a return to their homes, or placement for adoption. In an effort to clarify them, Barth and his colleagues have synthesized the results of their longitudinal study in California of the paths taken by children after the initial abuse report: foster care, a return to their homes, or placement for adoption. Because the outcomes of child welfare services in California have national significance, this is far more than a regional study. It provides a comprehensive picture of children's experiences in the child welfare system and a gauge of the effectiveness of that system. The policy implications of the California study have bearing on major federal and state initiatives to prevent child abuse and reduce unnecessary foster and group home care. The Challenge of Permanency Planning in a Multicultural Society Gary R. Take Me Home Jill Duerr Berrick, 2009 There is a profound crisis in the United States foster care system Jill Duerr

Berrick writes No state has passed the federally mandated Child and Family Service Review two thirds of the state systems have faced class action lawsuits demanding change well over half of all children who enter foster care never go home

The Foster Care Crisis Patrick Almond Curtis,Grady Dale,Joshua C. Kendall,1999-01-01 The inadequacy of the foster care system has long been recognized One of the biggest obstacles to reforming the system is the relative unavailability of research data from the field information that would shed light on key empirical trends and pressing issues This long overdue volume provides a much needed overview of the current state of foster care Leading researchers and practitioners summarize and discuss the results of their current research providing through their data an unparalleled detailed glimpse of the inner workings of the foster care system in its entirety The volume is also valuable for its survey and syntheses of important issues and trends affecting foster care Subjects discussed include welfare reform reporting systems family reunification mental health services and the needs of minority children Wide ranging and detailed in its coverage this collection is destined to become an essential reference and guide to the foster care system On Your Own without a Net D. Wayne Osgood,E. Michael Foster,Constance Flanagan,Gretchen R. Ruth,2008-09-15 In the decade after high school young people continue to rely on their families in many ways sometimes for financial support sometimes for help with childcare and sometimes for continued shelter But what about those young people who confront special difficulties during this period many of whom can count on little help from their families On Your Own Without a Net documents the special challenges facing seven vulnerable populations during the transition to adulthood former foster care youth youth formerly involved in the juvenile justice system youth in the criminal justice system runaway and homeless youth former special education students young people in the mental health system and youth with physical disabilities During adolescence government programs have been a major part of their lives yet eligibility for most programs typically ends between the ages of eighteen and twenty one This critical volume shows the unfortunate repercussions of this termination of support and points out the issues that must be addressed to improve these young people s chances of becoming successful adults Program Evaluation and Family Violence Research Sally K. Ward,David Finkelhor,2014-05-22 Understand and evaluate family violence programs for your community Twenty years ago the major issue in creating interventions to prevent domestic violence was persuading the courts the funding agencies and society that domestic violence was a serious problem worthy of time trouble and money Now that the importance of domestic violence has been established we need safe and effective ways to evaluate those interventions to see which ones are working and how they can be improved Program Evaluation and Family Violence Research brings together some of the best minds in the field discussing such vital evaluation issues as policy implications alternative designs for evaluation studies and ethical concerns This comprehensive book approaches the vexed question of evaluation with compassion as well as scientific rigor Clearly traditional double blind studies and control groups are difficult to conduct when family violence is the subject it is ethically indefensible to sit back and watch abusers hurt their mates or children when interventions are available Yet finding usable methods of program evaluation is also essential Program Evaluation and Family Violence Research confronts these questions and discusses practical ways to evaluate a variety of domestic violence programs Program Evaluation and Family Violence Research draws on years of experience to address the difficult questions raised including going beyond evaluating program effectiveness to analyze why and how interventions help change behavior creating new research designs to adapt to the unique concerns of the family violence field using meta analysis for program evaluation research determining the interaction between research and program results identifying barriers between community activists and social scientists that may impede research Program Evaluation and Family Violence Research offers fresh and creative ways to do program evaluations guarantee subjects physical and emotional safety and make good science humane

Understanding and Assessing Child Sexual Maltreatment Kathleen Coulborn Faller, 2003 An essential resource for child protection workers mental health practitioners lawyers and law enforcement personnel Understanding and Assessing Child Sexual Maltreatment Second Edition is also an ideal supplementary text for graduate courses in child welfare practice social work and psychology BOOK JACKET Assessing Outcomes in Child and Family Services Anthony N. Maluccio, 2017-11-30 In this collective portrait editors and authors do not attempt to draw systematic country by country comparisons Given the magnitude of the issues they believed that it would be inappropriate to paint with too broad a stroke What they have accomplished however is to codify and identify what the participants repeatedly noted in regard to issues and difficulties inherent in conducting outcome evaluation These include varying definitions of outcome complexities in measuring outcomes of particular interventions with different groups of consumers and documenting the effectiveness of the intervention the tendency to focus on evaluation of process more than outcome the challenge of involving practitioners in the evaluation task in part because its value is unclear to them or perceived as distant or untrustworthy the typical inadequacy of resources available for systematic evaluation and the need to inject rigor into the design and execution of evaluation projects The authors demonstrate strong conviction about sharing research expertise across national boundaries learning through each other how to cope with organizational impediments to cross national collaboration and strengthening the interaction between practice and research Their contributions suggest that there is wide interest in pursuing cross national collaboration In recent years largely in response to demands by their funding sources for accountability assessment of performance and cost effectiveness researchers in human services have been devoting increased attention to outcome evaluation Limited attention however has been given to the findings of evaluation studies conducted in different countries The present volume has been organized and edited to address the task of learning from outcome research across the world Its goal an extension of a major goal of the human services in any one country is to improve life chances of vulnerable children and youth Evaluation in Child and Family Services Tiziano Vecchiato, Anthony N. Maluccio, Cinzia Canali, As child and family interventions assume greater international application it will be helpful to examine the various ways in which service innovations are being evaluated As demonstrated in the seminar from which these chapters resulted only by sharing our specific professional interests our too frequent problems in measurement our despair in implementing complicated studies and our successes can we advance the evaluation of human services and their outcomes This volume considers a variety of programs and issues in the field of child and family services While different perspectives are evident among the authors in terms of their focus and or emphasis there is common concern about the value of examining each program or service so as to maximize its impact as well as its potential for dissemination Intervention research should spur and motivate cross national efforts not only among researchers but also among social workers and other practitioners from diverse professions engaged in the delivery of human services Such collaboration would contribute to the ultimate goals of achieving greater clarity about the specifics of best practices in child and family services protocols for assessing outcomes and ways of improving service delivery How then can researchers and policymakers in diverse settings within diverse countries improve practice and service delivery on behalf of children and families What particular program findings can be generalized to improve services How can we share and implement new solutions The contributions to this volume address such questions from varying international perspectives Contributors provide answers and generate discussion points for consideration by practitioners as well as researchers The book is a must for social work parishioners in areas involving the delivery of goods as well as services Tiziano Vecchiato is scientific director of the Fondazione Emanuela Zancan Padua Italy Anthony N Maluccio is professor of social work at Boston College Graduate School of Social Work Chestnut Hill Massachusetts Cinzia Canali is research associate at the Fondazione Emanuela Zancan Padua Italy

The Subject of Care Eva Feder Kittay, Ellen K. Feder, 2003-10-01 All people spend a considerable portion of their lives either as dependents or the caretakers of dependents The fact of human dependency a function of youth severe illness disability or frail old age marks our lives not only as those who are cared for but as those who engage in the work of caring In spite of the time energy and resources material and emotional social and individual that dependency care requires these concerns rarely enter into philosophical legal and political discussions In The Subject of Care feminist scholars consider how acknowledgement of the fact of dependency changes our conceptions of law political theory and morality as well as our very conceptions of self Contributors develop feminist understandings of dependency reassessing the place dependency occupies in our lives and in a just social order

Does Family Preservation Serve a Child's Best Interests? Howard Altstein, Ruth G. McRoy, 2000-08-02 In this new volume two distinguished professors of social work debate the question of whether family preservation or adoption serves the best interests of abused and neglected children Arguing the merits of keeping families together whenever possible Ruth G McRoy examines the background theory and effectiveness of family preservation programs She provides practical recommendations and pays particular attention to the concerns of African American children Claiming that there is insufficient evidence that family preservation actually works Howard Altstein counters that children from truly dysfunctional families should be given the chance for stable lives through adoption rather than left in limbo

Residential Care of Children Mark E. Courtney, Dorota Iwaniec, 2009-03-25 Residential Care of Children fills major gaps in knowledge about residential care of children and is sure to inform ongoing debates within and between nations about the appropriate use of such institutions This insight filled book will be required reading for all child welfare scholars particularly as international perspectives become increasingly emphasized

The Child Welfare Challenge Peter J. Pecora, James K. Whittaker, Anthony N. Maluccio, Richard P. Barth, 2012-01-31 Within a historical and contemporary context this book examines major policy practice and research issues as they jointly shape child welfare practice and its future In addition to describing the major problems facing the field the book highlights service innovations that have been developed in recent years The resulting picture is encouraging especially if certain major program reforms are implemented and agencies are able to concentrate resources in a focused manner The volume emphasizes families and children whose primary recourse to services has been through publicly funded child welfare agencies The book considers historical areas of service foster care and adoptions in home family centered services child protective services and residential services where social work has an important role Authors address the many fields of practice in which child and family services are provided or that involve substantial numbers of social work programs such as services to adolescent parents child mental health education and juvenile justice agencies This new edition will continue to serve as a fundamental introduction for new practitioners as well as summary of recent developments for experienced practitioners
